LONDON POLICE BATTLE 2,000 IN HUNGER MARCH

Score Injured in British Capital's Most Serious Trouble in Years.

RED FLAGS CARRIED BY DEMONSTRATORS

Songs of Revolution Sung; Other Disturbances Are Staged Over Isles.

London, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The hunger march of the unemployed reached a bloody climax this afternoon in a riot at Hyde Park in which screaming and cursing men and women, who battered police with bricks and stones, kept the place in turmoil for more than an hour.

More than a score of persons were injured in the fighting, nine of them seriously enough to require hospital care.

The trouble started as footsore groups of hunger marchers, who had been coming for days from all parts of the island, poured through the marble arch leading into Hyde Park from Great Cumberland place. Within the park 50,000 to 100,000 spectators were assembled.

Start of Rioting.

As the marchers, singing songs of revolution and bearing the Communist banner of the hammer and sickle, moved toward their places, someone threw a brick through a postoffice window. A policeman swung his club. And the most serious rioting that London has seen in years was under way.

Their batons swinging, mounted police charged the cursing, booing mobs. The crowd fell back, only to advance again, and again to be pushed back.

Repeatedly the police rode in against barrages of stone and mud. Rioters pulled branches from the trees and ripped up park railings for weapons against the steady relentless assault.

New Mobs Gather.

Meanwhile the thousands within the park grew restive. They had been listening in orderly fashion as 50 soapbox orators, representatives of the 2,000 hunger marchers, assailed the government for its administration of the dole system. But the fight in the 300-yard sector along the bridle path to the west of the marble arch was a greater attraction than the soapbox speakers.

There was a surge toward the center of action. New and menacing mobs gathered within the park railing.

The police met this new danger by extending their charges along Bayswater road, and finally they got the upper hand.

Police Are Taunted.

The hunger marchers, their demonstration over, moved out of the park, still singing and shouting taunts at the police.

The demonstration was directed against the "means test," a provision of the dole system which re-

Britain Plans Prohibitive Duty on Foreign Copper

London, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, announced in the House of Commons today that the government proposes to establish a virtually prohibitive duty on foreign raw copper.

The purpose of this duty, he said, is to build up the empire supply. It would be 2 pence (about 3 cents American) a pound.

France to Abolish U. S. Trade Quota

American Exporters Will Benefit Greatly by Cabinet Move.

Paris, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Drastic changes in the French commercial policy, involving elimination of the quota system which has reduced America's market, have ben decided upon by Premier Edouard Herriot and his cabinet, it was learned today.

The United States, Great Britain, Argentina and other governments have protested bitterly against the quota. Minister of Commerce Julien Durand is expected to announce the plan for its elimination in a speech Friday at a banquet of the federation of French industrialists and business men.

The principal groups concerned favor immediate overthrow of the quota plan. The most forceful protest came from the American Chamber of Commerce in France through the United States Embassy. The chamber accused the government of favoritism in the award of German quotas. Thereafter an improvement was noted in United States quotas.

Trade Revival Revealed By False Fire Alarm

Milwaukee, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Lights flickered in the plant of the Heller Leather Co., glove manufacturers, last night. Excited residents summoned the fire department.

Herman Heller, president, met the firemen and explained that the firm had received some orders and that a night crew went on duty.

NOMINEE TALKS TO STAGE FOLK

Roosevelt Sees Glorious Victory in Telephone Speech to Stars.

Albany, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Visualizing a "glorious Democratic victory" in November, Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight told a crowd of stage and screen stars in New York City that he was confident that "the electorate understands the great issues involved" in the coming election "and their vital importance to the future of our beloved country."

Speaking over the telephone from the quiet of his private study in the executive mansion here, the Democratic presidential candidate said that "under the leadership of a militant, vital, liberal democracy we are headed for better days."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke of his conferences during the day with legislative leaders and expressed his pride "in the fact that the enlightened public opinion in this State, regardless of party, has backed me up" in the recognition of the duty of the State toward its unemployed citizens.

Reports Jobless Progress.

Speaking shortly after he had addressed the American-Greek Democratic Association of New York, Mr. Roosevelt said that, with certain local exceptions, unemployment relief was proceeding satisfactorily in New York State.

He said the decision that it was unnecessary to call a special session of the State Legislature meant that "the voters have it in their power on election day to make certain that starvation, privation and other suffering will be greatly mitigated during the severe winter months that are ahead of us." A $30,000,000 bond issue for relief is to be passed upon in the election.

He expressed regret that he was unable to attend the party and said

Bank Holdup Fails As Revolvers Roar

Armed Desperado Routed as Norfolk Manager and Teller Open Fire.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—An unidentified Negro, who tried to hold up the Church street branch of the Virginia National Bank today, escaped after exchanging several shots with bank employes.

J. L. Joliff, paying teller, said a tall Negro entered the bank a few minutes after noon and asked for change for a bill. Before the change could be given he drew a pistol and fired one shot, then climbed on top of the cage occupied by the teller and fired several more shots.

Reaching his own pistol, Joliff returned the fire, and Lewis Bress, branch manager, also joined in the shooting, firing several shots as the Negro dropped from the cage and fled through the door without securing any money.

150,000 VIEW FRATERNITIES IN BIG PARADE

Colorful March Headed by Gen. Malone and Army Band.

5,000 PERSONS TAKE PART IN CEREMONY

Scores of Floats and Drum Corps Add to Fete in Honoring Washington.

Paraders—5,000 strong—marching in automobiles and on decorated floats, streamed up Pennsylvania avenue last night in a varicolored procession as fraternal Washington celebrated, en masse, the George Washington Bicentennial.

Music from a score of bands and bugle corps provided cadence for the march, which took 1½ hours to pass the reviewing stand at Sixteenth street and Constitution avenue. A crowd estimated at 150,000 persons lined the Avenue, Fifteenth street and Constitution avenue to watch the march.

Flood Lights Add to Color.

Polished swords, brass buttons and the rich colors of the varied fraternal uniforms made a dazzling display as the more than 100 units passed through the floodlighted area in front of the reviewing stand.

In the reviewing stand were Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding officer of the Third Corps Area and grand marshal of the parade; members of the District Bicentennial Commission, and leading District citizens and officials.

Marching units of the city's fraternities and societies were augmented by five United States Army units and groups representing several veterans organizations and women's auxiliaries

Military Units In Lead.

The first division of the march was headed by Gen. Malone. It contained the Army Band, a squadron of the Third Cavalry, the Third Cavalry Band, the Sixteenth Field Artillery and the Third Battalion of the Twelfth Infantry.

Then followed the remaining seven divisions of the march. Floats, bands, decorated automobiles and marchers were mixed in a seemingly continuous ribbon.

There were 5,064 persons in the parade, according to a police count. Of this total, 4,036 marched on foot and 1,028 rode floats, in cars and on horseback. There were 338 autos and floats, 155 horses and 24 bands and drum and bugle corps in the line of march.

Former Atlanta Boss Dies as Road Convict

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Death from a paralytic stroke, suffered while serving a chain gang sentence for bribery, tonight ended the colorful career of Walter C. Taylor, 64, who left a city editor's desk to reign for twenty years as political dictator of one of Dixie's largest cities. He died at 11 p. m.

In 1911, after rising to the top rank of Southern newspapermen, Taylor was elected city clerk of Atlanta, and served until 1930, when he resigned during a probe into widespread city graft, that indicted him and some 40 other city officials and broke up one of the South's most powerful political rings.

22 Airplanes Trapped By Fog in California

Several Crash in Landing But All of Fliers Escape Unhurt; Mail Pilot Hero in Thrilling Rescue.

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—A stirring air drama was played in an impenetrable fog here tonight after 22 Navy airplanes had been stranded in the sky with dwindling gasoline supplies, and at its conclusion every aviator involved was safe.

As the planes attempted to land their fuel ran dangerously low, one plane was demolished, another was badly damaged, one caught fire and several others turned over and were slightly damaged.

At 8 o'clock tonight only two planes remained aloft, and they circled aimlessly about over the city watching for a break in the fog. They carried no radios and could not be told that the Navy's call upon the citizens of San Diego for assistance had sent scores of motorists rushing to Camp Kearny mesa to light up with the headlights of their cars an unused airport there.

The United Airlines night mail plane, piloted by C. P. Sullivan, was en route from Los Angeles to San Diego. It carried a radio-telephone. At the request of the Navy, Sullivan was asked to fly around above the fog, locate the two planes and lead them to Camp Kearny.

He circled the town several times, picked up first one and then the other plane and, by flashing three dots and a dash with his cabin lights, informed them they were to follow him. The three in this strange flight reached the abandoned Army camp and landed there in safety amidst cheers of several hundred persons.

The fog swept in from the sea over San Diego so rapidly it enveloped the whole area within the space of a few minutes. It was so thick on the ground that automobile driving was hazardous.

Three planes made their forced landings at Lindbergh Field, San Diego's municipal airport, which is directly across the bay from North Island Naval Air Station. One plane nosed over on the runway. The remainder landed at North Island, either on the Navy runway or the Army's Rockwell Field. One of them overshot the field and was wrecked at the edge of the water on the bay side of the island.

The fog rolled in from the sea with such rapidity that it seemed to congeal in the air at dusk.

Several weeks ago six planes in a scouting squadron were air stranded at sea when fog obliterated the U. S. S. Lexington, giant airplane carrier during maneuvers. Two of them landed on bleak San Clemente Island. The other four came down in the sea. The aviators were rescued, but two planes sank.

FOREIGN AID APPEAL IS DENIED BY FARLEY

Story of Plea for Outside Cash to Aid Campaign Blamed on G. O. P.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, described tonight as an "utterly untrue story," the statement issued by the Republican national committee at Washington asserting that an appeal "to foreign interests" for finances by the Democratic national committee had been "disclosed" by an item in the Montreal Star.

Farley's statement said:

"The Republican national headquarters has issued a forged letter purporting to have come from me and supposed to have been received by an unnamed Canadian shipping man asking for a contribution to the Democratic campaign fund, and implying an effort on my part to enlist foreign aid to elect Gov. Roosevelt.

"I have no doubt that the Montreal Star, which is given as the source of this utterly untrue story, received such a letter, nor have I any doubt of the source from which it came.

"It is the same source from which proceeded an equally baseless story that 35,000 people had written the Literary Digest to change their ballots from Roosevelt to Hoover. This latter story was denied by the Literary Digest editors who also let it be known that the falsehood proceeded from Republican headquarters.

"I never wrote, saw, or signed any such letter as that to which the Republican national committee gave currency tonight. In fact, I have never written a letter to anybody, Canadian or American, soliciting funds. That is not my function in the Democratic organization.

"This is simply a last-minute libel, promulgated by the party opposing Gov. Roosevelt's election with the idea of prejudicing his cause before the people of the United States. It is

ST. MARYS PEACE PARLEY IS FAILURE

Mass Meeting on Activities of Gang Splits on Work of Sheriff.

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—A mass meeting of St. Marys County citizens for discussion of recent holdups and robberies in southern Maryland broke up today in turmoil after several women, who formed a portion of the crowd that jammed the courthouse hall, opened a defense of the newspapers and an attack on Sheriff Richard T. Hammett.

Several resolutions, principally dealing with votes of confidence for the sheriff and criticism of him for not deputizing members of the State police, were offered, but later withdrawn or were not acted on as the citizens left the hall without any formal motion for adjournment.

The hall of the courthouse was crowded and many people could not get into the meeting. The hall has a seating capacity of 500. J. W. Joy, president of the First National Bank of Leonardtown, was named chairman.

The Rev. Jesse Woodrow, of Leonardtown, the first speaker, said he was not interested in politics but he did want St. Marys County made safe for citizens. He suggested the deputizing of the State policemen by the sheriff.

Dr. Frank F. Greenwell, mayor of Leonardtown, opposed the deputization, "fearing the liability of their actions (the State police) would be held accountable to the sheriff's bond."

State's Attorney John H. T. Briscoe outlined the motor vehicle laws and read a letter from Austin Baughman, motor vehicle commissioner, in which he said the Maryland State police "at

Army to Court-Martial Two as Map Thieves

Honolulu, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Two enlisted men were held incommunicado today at Army headquarters here in connection with attempted theft and sale of army documents and will be court-martialed as soon as an inquiry has been completed, Army authorities said.

The men, whose names were withheld, were said to have sold Army maps for $100 to a confidential agent of the Army who posed as a representative of a foreign power. Marked money, it was asserted, was handed to the men at a cottage at Waikiki Beach, and their arrest followed Tuesday night.

HOOVER LEAVES ON JOURNEY TO MIDWEST ARENA

Works on Speech to Be Given Tonight in Indianapolis.

ADDRESS BY RITCHIE THERE AT SAME TIME

Talks to Be Made in Three States; Mrs. Hoover With President.

Aboard Presidential Special En Route to Indianapolis, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Speeding again into the Midwest, President Hoover late tonight occupied himself with a final marshaling of the campaign questions he will discuss tomorrow during appearances before a dozen audiences in three States.

When the Chief Executive boarded his special train in Washington shortly before 11 p. m., he carried with him a not quite completed copy of the address he will deliver in Indianapolis tomorrow night.

Applause from late travelers and the flare of repeated flashlights ushered the President and Mrs. Hoover aboard the train. Then Mr. Hoover, smoking a cigar, went to the rear platform, stood there for a minute while more pictures were taken, bowed, and moved inside as the train started.

(Associated Press.)

Before turning westward last night for the fourth successive time in 25 days of active campaigning, President Hoover yesterday concentrated on an almost unbroken drive of preparation for the score of big and little speeches scheduled for the next few days.

With appearances before at least twelve audiences arranged for today on his way to Indianapolis, the Chief Executive took time off only for a brief round of conferences and picture taking.

Late in the day White House aids announced that an even more strenuous journey had been arranged for the President than that originally announced. Four more stops were added to his itinerary—Hamden and Oxford, Ohio, and Liberty and New Palestine, Ind.

Politics Buzz in Indiana.

Meanwhile, reports came to the White House from Indianapolis that the Chief Executive and Mrs. Hoover could expect to find the Hoosier capital in a political buzz upon their arrival at 4 p. m. today.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland will speak there tonight also and rival torchlight parades with all of the old-style political trimmings have been planned by the Democratic and Republican leaders.

The President's address is scheduled to start earlier than usual, at 7:30

Florida Convicts Strike At Sweat-Box Torture

Indiantown, Fla., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—A group of white convicts at a State road prison camp near here went on strike today, but camp officials reported to the State prison bureau that they had "the situation well in hand."

The strike started this morning when the convicts resisted efforts of Capt. C. Musgrove to place a prisoner in the solitary confinement cell, or "sweat box."

Address to Aid Hoover Reaches U. S. From Philippines.

Manila, Oct. 28 (Friday) (A.P.).—In the first campaign address brought by radio across the seas in American political history, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Governor General of the Philippines, today urged the reelection of President Hoover, whom he characterized as a man "capable of facing the crisis."

Roosevelt, son of the former President, a lifelong Republican, and distant cousin of the Democratic candidate, Franklin D. Roosevelt, rose early in the morning on Friday here that his words might be carried to the voters in America on Thursday evening.

After lauding President Hoover's economic measures, Roosevelt concluded with "for the good of the Nation we must elect Herbert Hoover."

"The United States is still American and is going to stay so," he told his distant audience. "That is the issue in the campaign and we will fight it out on those lines.

"We do not wish our country to be made a laboratory for wholesale experiments in Government ownership, tariff tinkering or currency inflation. • • •

Says Governor Faces Compromise.

"I do not accuse the Democratic standard bearer of advocating all these theories. However, they are all held in a lesser or greater degree by component elements of the group that is backing him, and any sensible individual knows that when you marry you do not merely marry your wife but her family as well.

"Should he be elected, we will be putting in control of the affairs of our Nation a group forming a compendium of these theories. From every side the severest pressure will be brought to bear on him to lend himself to these theories. He will be forced to concede or he will be stalemated.

"President Hoover, on the other hand, when reelected will be concerned only with carrying on the sound common-sense policies he has been advocating, policies in accord with American principles, policies which, if adopted, will safely guide our country through these dangers."

Roosevelt said from his distant vantage point he was able to "see more clearly the conditions of our

SMITH BOOMS PARTY TICKET IN BAY STATE

ATTACK ON REGIME CHEERED BY 15,000

President, Cabinet, G. O. P. Senators and Policies Made Targets.

Boston, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith brought a hall full of cheering Democrats to their feet tonight when he told them he had come in to New England to ask for the "unqualified, full and complete support of Franklin D. Roosevelt" at the November 8 election. It was many seconds before he could continue.

In winding up his address to Democrats of this State, who gave him their 1928 electoral votes and supported him to the end of the Chicago convention, he declared to a crowd estimated by police at 15,000:

"I confidently believe the salvation of the country in this crisis • • • lies in the success of the Democratic ticket under the leadership of Frank Roosevelt and John Garner."

Frequently throughout the address, which was punctuated with the crowd's roars of approval, he spoke of Roosevelt as "Frank."

Criticism of Leaders.

Most of the address, which Smith delivered in a booming voice, as perspiration streamed down his ruddy face, comprised a vigorous criticism of President Hoover, his Cabinet members, leading Republican senators and administration policies.

"If I were to be asked tonight," he said, "what, in my opinion, was the greatest failure of the existing administration, I would be compelled to say that they left the people of this country entirely in the dark with regard to the all-important function of government—the final adjustment of our financial condition. There is no doubt that they will be able to explain it, but the explanation was not in their favor, and it was therefore withheld.

"In 1930 the United States Treasury was facing a deficit of $1,000,000,000—one billion. Not a single word was said about it, not a single line was penned about it. Why? Because the administration was living in the hope that things would rectify themselves.

Hits "Policy of Waiting."

"And if you study that expression to its last and final analysis, it is the whole story of the present Republican administration—living constantly in the hope that things would take care of themselves; that Divine Providence would intervene, and that there would be no occasion for anything forthcoming from the Government.

"That was all right. They got away with it—nobody knew anything about it—until you come to the following fall of 1931, when the 1932 budget was being prepared, and there was an additional million dollars of deficit.

"Then it was that the administration suddenly woke up to the neces-

Kidnaped Child Is Pawn In Tangle Over Big Estate

Wealthy Divorcee's Foster Daughter Recovered and Unmarried Mother Is Held With Iceman in Abduction; Inheritance Dependent Upon Child.

Los Angeles, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—An absorbing story that started years ago with the marriage of an English gentleman and a beautiful daughter of one of Southern California's finest Spanish families and ended in what police described as the abduction of an infant by its unmarried mother was revealed today by authorities investigating the kidnaping of Nancy Irene Buchanan.

Spirited away from a home of wealth that had been hers almost since birth, 3-year-old Nancy was found and returned to her foster mother, Mrs. Violet Buchanan, wealthy divorcee, by authorities, who arrested the child's mother, Miss Ruth Borman, 20, and her suitor, M. E. Warner, an iceman, on charges of kidnaping.

Spurred by the possibility the child might have been the victim of extortionists, authorities pressed an all-night search and found Nancy asleep in the arms of her mother in a shack in the San Fernando Valley.

"She's still my baby," insisted Miss Borman, despite a recent court order making Mrs. Buchanan the guardian but not the legal parent of Nancy. Although Mrs. Buchanan two months ago had received a series of letters demanding $12,500 under threat of kidnaping Nancy, authorities said they found no evidence connecting Miss Borman with the letters.

Years ago, detectives learned, Josefa Bandini, beautiful daughter of a Southern California Spanish family, married Clevedon Thomas, an English gentleman. To them was born a daughter, Edith Violet Antonia Clevedon Thomas.

In time Thomas died, leaving an estate in England valued at £100,000 sterling to the widow and daughter. The widow later married Horace Balfour Douslin, now living in New Zealand, but later she died and her part of the Thomas estate passed to the daughter, Mrs. Violet Buchanan.

By that time Violet had married her chauffeur, Arthur Buchanan, now

Anglo-American Agreement On Navy Reduction Pushed

U. S. Delegate to Disarmament Parley Confers With MacDonald on Plan for Cut Called For by Hoover; Required Categories Would Be Retained.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Efforts were in progress on both sides of the Atlantic last night to expedite an Anglo-American compromise on naval disarmament in the spirit of President Hoover's Navy Day statement. Norman Davis, the American delegate to the disarmament conference, conferred at some length with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, and together they laid the bases of a working understanding on naval arms reduction which will form an effective wedge for the reopening of the arms negotiations.

The steering committee will sit in Geneva again on Wednesday. At that time it is believed the French and Japanese delegations will bring into the open the disarmament proposals they have been hatching since the dramatic statement of President Hoover last June. A meeting of the general committee, under the direction of President Arthur Henderson, will, in all probability, be called some time after November 21. At these two committees discussion will be opened on the various disarmament plans that have been brought forth and an effort will be made to reconcile their conflicting provisions before the general conference is called to order.

This is not the first time that President Hoover reminded the nations of Europe of the necessity of a general agreement on all arms reductions before the United States will proceed to any limitation. In his speech in Detroit he declared:

"In the present disturbed state of the world, we must not further reduce our defenses without a general agreement of reduction of arms."

The great difficulty in the negotiations of the conference to date has been the emphasis laid by every nation upon the safeguarding of the particular category of naval armament it considers most necessary to

HENRY FORD SCORED AS ENEMY OF LABOR

Tobin Points to Irish-Built Tractors Which Add to American Jobless.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Henry Ford was characterized today by Daniel J. Tobin, labor activities director of the Democratic national committee, as "an enemy of the American worker, who has vastly increased unemployment in America by removing his factories to Europe."

Mr. Ford recently spoke for the reelection of President Hoover.

Discussing the President's recent order for an investigation of tariff schedules, Tobin said in a statement released through the national committee:

"If this is more than a political gesture it would only be fair for the President to order an investigation of the worst offender of all in this depression.

"Mr. Ford, who recently lauded Mr. Hoover and his high tariff policy, urging his workers to vote for Hoover, is profiting to the extent of hundreds of millions, through a carefully provided loophole in the tariff wall. His tractors for the American trade are now made in Ireland, where labor is cheap, and imported duty free as farm implements. The huge profit resulting comes directly out of the pockets of the thousands of workers, who once made these tractors in Ford's American factories."

Ford today sent the following message to the Eastern headquarters of the Republican national committee:

"No Democratic leader called it coercion when I personally introduced 40,000 of our employees, all we had at that time, to Woodrow Wilson at our Highland Park plant."

George Akerson, former secretary to the President and official at the headquarters, said the telegram from the manufacturer was a "reply to the recent Democratic charges, that Mr. Ford was attempting to coerce his workers to vote for President Hoover."

Brady, housing committee; and Milton Barrett, peoples council committee.

The Treasury reported that out of 250 members, since October 19, 85 had paid their dues for the coming year. A statement was also presented to the effect that the white population of the Southwest section is noticeably on the increase.

Walsh Says Tariff Destroyed Farmer

Montana Senator Declares Ruinous Import Duties Caused U. S. Crash.

Omaha, Nebr., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Democrat), of Montana, told a Democratic rally here tonight, "Ever - increasing tariffs" have been "obviously ruinous to the farmer."

He attacked the Republican administration's treatment of farm problems and unemployment and governmental supervision of business organizations.

"The standpat policy, to which the President and the Republican leaders subscribe, brought ruin upon the country," he said, "and ought to be, as it beyond doubt will be, repudiated by the sovereign people in the election two weeks hence."

Senator Walsh told his farm-belt audience a recent survey of the general farm situation stated "the purchasing power of the American farmer, once amounting to as much as $16,000,000,000 annually, has now shrunk to less than $5,000,000,000."

"What that means to industry needs no exposition," he said. "It could not withstand such a terrific loss of trade, and the crash came."

Governor Job Calls.

"I am happy that so many Americans of Greek origin are showing so clearly their definite determination to work for the success of the Democratic ticket on November 8," he added after saying he had taken part in the negotiations that resulted in the purchase by Greece of two American battleships while he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

The speeches concluded a day which had seen the presidential nominee figuring largely as the governor of a State with problems of the State government to deal with. Most of his day was spent in conferences on relief purposes.

In his afternoon press conference he joked with reporters before turning into a relation of his day's activities. He said he had found in the day's conferences that if the bond issue were voted for relief a special session would not be necessary, but that if the issue failed of acceptance by the voters an immediate session would have to be called to provide increased or new taxes to meet the demands for relief.

A little earlier he had declined to discuss the question of Russian recognition and said that he had no definite plans yet formulated for his Eastern campaign sweep beyond his speech in Boston Monday night and the two that already have been arranged for the last of the week in New York and Brooklyn.

Prof. Fisher Backs Hoover Retention

Yale Economist Declares President Best Bet to End Depression.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Irving Fisher, Yale University economist, declared in an address here today, that President Hoover could "bring us out of the depression quicker than Gov. Roosevelt."

Prof. Fisher, addressing the Ohio convention of building and loan associations, said:

"I am going to vote for President Hoover because he can bring us out of the depression quicker than Gov. Roosevelt. I do not mean to talk politics, but I am talking economics."

He urged the restoration and stabilization of the purchasing power of the dollar as a means toward eventual economic recovery.

"I thoroughly believe that 90 per cent of the depression could have been averted if the measures which have been recently placed in operation had been enacted two years ago. We can control the price level, not by controlling gold, but by controlling the price of the dollar, in terms of commodities.

"I am a Republican, but I do not agree with the Republican administration. In my opinion, no factor has contributed more to the depression than the change in the purchasing power of the dollar."

Fairfax Fox Hunters To Hold Trial Meet

The Fairfax Fox Hunters Association has been formed at Sunset Hills, Va., in Fairfax County, and will hold its first trial meet November 1 on the farm of Cliff Costello, 3 miles north of Dranesville on the Potomac River above Great Falls.

The association has appointed Joseph A. Wheeler, De Long Bowman, Stewart Preece, R. S. Crippen, Sable Brockman, Mark Turner, Will Holtzclaw, G. L. Thrazes and L. B. Morris a committee to arrange for an old-time fox chase. The Fairfax fox hunters are composed of land owners along the Potomac River over whose lands the hunt courses lie.

Mrs. Henry Roosevelt Will Vote Democratic

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct 27 (A.P.).—Another Mrs. Roosevelt—a Republican—came to hear Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Democratic candidate for President, make a speech tonight. Mrs Henry Roosevelt, of Washington and Skaneateles, N. Y., sat at the speakers' table and heard her husband's second cousin make an address in behalf of the Democratic candidate for governor. She said she was going to vote for Gov. Roosevelt for President herself.

"My husband," she said, "is a Democrat. He is a second cousin of Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt and a distant cousin of the governor, and he doesn't mind it a bit."

Thomas' Talk Hits Trouble in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, was refused permission late today to address a mass meeting tomorrow on Rayburn Plaza, where President Hoover is to speak next Monday. Later, it was explained that the Socialists will not be prevented from holding a meeting on the plaza if they desire.

The plaza is under the jurisdiction of the Fairmount Park Commission and it was stated by the secretary of that body that it is against the law to hold political meetings on park property. However, it is understood the Socialists were assured they would not be disturbed if a meeting is held.

Missing Boy Comes Home To Hot Bath

A frantic parental and police search for Edward Harding, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harding, of 2400 Sixteenth street northwest, was abruptly ended yesterday with the voluntary appearance of the child after an afternoon's romp with playmates.

Mrs. Harding missed the lad in Lafayette Park, where she had taken him to play. After searching the park she appealed to police for help and a lookout was broadcast for the boy.

Later Mrs. Harding went home to await the course of events. As afternoon began to wane, the door of the Harding apartment opened and in walked Edward, jr., a little disheveled, but unharmed and happy.

"He looked as if he had been playing in a mud bank," said Mrs. Harding last night, after bathing her offspring, "but I believe he had a good time. He met some friends and they wandered off to play."

Costello Quarters Mecca for Voters

Secret Polling Booths Are Packed With Absentee Ballot Casters.

Headquarters of the District Democratic central committee at 1320 G street northwest has taken up something of the appearance of a regular polling place.

So many absentee voters, who bring their ballots to the headquarters to be notarized and mailed, demanded privacy while filling out their ballots that John F. Costello, national committeeman, caused a double row of shielded voting booths to be constructed for their use.

Both the Democratic and Republican District campaign headquarters report a more widespread and intense interest among Washington residents in the coming election than ever before.

Dartmouth Poll Favors Hoover; Thomas Next

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Dartmouth students and faculty members prefer Herbert Hoover to Norman Thomas and Norman Thomas to Franklin D. Roosevelt, returns in today's campus-wide presidential poll showed.

President Hoover received 1,120 votes from the students and 38 from the faculty, Thomas was selected by 274 students and 31 professors, and Roosevelt polled 255 undergraduates and 23 faculty votes. William Z. Foster, Communist candidate, received twelve student votes and one from a member of the faculty.

Republicans See Hope In Polls at Colleges

(Associated Press.)

The Republican national committee last night said polls taken in a number of colleges and universities "show that a majority of students favor the reelection of President Hoover."

The statement said "unexpected Republican strength was found in a report from Tulane University at New Orleans, "in the heart of the 'solid South,'" with Hoover leading 2 to 1, Thomas second and "Roosevelt polling only six votes from the entire institution."

Castle Says Debt Issue Not Closed

But Any Change Will Be for Benefit of U. S., He Declares.

Cleveland, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Undersecretary Castle said today that party platform declarations against foreign debt cancellation in neither case means necessarily "there shall be no discussion of the matter with foreign powers, no accommodation, no amelioration of the terms of the debts."

The State Department official added that since both parties are recorded against cancellation "the debts are not in themselves a political issue." In his address prepared for delivery to the Rotary Club here, Castle continued:

"We propose to remain as we have already shown ourselves, a generous creditor, but not in any case to the detriment of the citizens of this country. Whatever arrangements may be made must be for the benefit of the United States."

Young Robbery Suspect Identifies Dazed Victims

Held without bond, Edward Jarvins, 19-year-old youth, who astounded headquarters detectives several days ago by pointing out, in a police line-up, the persons he had robbed in holdups after they had failed to identify him, will be kept in the jail until the District grand jury has examined numerous charges of robbery against him.

Judge John P. McMahon yesterday, in Police Court, heard only a portion of one charge against Jarvins. Then he ordered him committed pending grand jury action. Jarvins was recently brought back from Florida.

Two Held in Florida For Hotel Theft Here

Two former employes of the Fairfax Hotel, Twenty-second street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, for whom a warrant was sworn out here by officials of the hotel in connection with the embezzlement of $2,300, have been arrested in Miami, Fla., police here were advised yesterday.

The men are Harry O. Waterfield, 28, and Roy J. Garlett, 32. They left Washington last Thursday morning and after discovering the shortage in the funds of the hotel, officials procured the warrant. Detective Sergt. Van Doren Hughes will leave for Miami today to bring the men back.

Seven Boys Arrested For Loitering in Park

On their promise to remain away from Stanton Park, seven boys, arrested in the park by policemen when they insisted upon congregating there, yesterday were given their liberty on personal bonds when they were tried in Police Court on charges of spitting on the sidewalk.

The policemen said they had warned the boys about congregating in noisy groups, and, they said, after the last warning, the group went to a fountain in the park and continued their activities.

TARIFF AIDS FARMS, CURTIS TELLS OHIO

Says Democrats Misrepresent G. O. P. Achievements in Capital.

Mount Vernon, Ohio, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Vice President Charles Curtis pictured high tariffs as a boon to the American farmer and predicted President Hoover's reelection in a speech prepared for delivery before a Republican rally here tonight.

It was the veteran Kansan's second speech of the day in Ohio. At noon, in Columbus, he had attacked Democratic leaders for what he termed "willful misrepresentation of Republican achievements at Washington."

"We Republicans have put a high tarif duty on 31 of the principal products of the farm in our bill," he said here. "The Democrats had a duty on only eight of these and their rate was a low one.

"I am for the American system of protection which will protect every farm and every factory and every mine and every home—one that will secure our American standard of living against the competition of the world.

"I do not want our American farmers forced to match wits with Europeans and South American farmers for a place in our home markets. I don't want our laboring men matching wits with cheap labor all over the world, just because we are afraid to put a high tariff wall up to protect ourselves. * * *

"Business is being revived due to the splendid constructive work and the great abilities of our President, Herbert Hoover. He is leading us back to the middle of the road and I am sure our people will express their deep gratitude November 8."

"Gov. Roosevelt," he continued, "contends the farmer's trouble began in 1921 under a Republican regime. As a matter of fact, they began in 1919 when the Democratic administration began its radical deflation policy of agricultural credits and ruined hundreds of thousands of farmers and stockmen in a few months' time. Gov. Roosevelt knows that as well as he knows anything."

Hoover Defeat Calamity, Glass Firm Head Says

(Associated Press.)

John B. Scohy, president of the Scohy Glass Co., Sisterville, W. Va., said today "it would be a calamity if we did not reelect President Hoover, as the country needs him more than ever."

In a statement issued through the Republican national committee, Scohy said a change of administration would mean "that we are going to drift into the same conditions that exist in Europe as we know that Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic party are not for protection or a protective tariff."

of Ontario, Calif., where authorities found him yesterday and questioned him concerning the disappearance of the infant, Nancy.

Later Mrs. Buchanan learned that her mother's share of the estate was to go to her, or rather to her child. But the Buchanans were childless.

The next chapter of the story, detectives said, was taken from records in the district attorney's office here. The records revealed that a year ago a complaint was made that Mrs. Buchanan had filed a birth certificate naming Nancy as her own child in order to claim her mother's share of the Thomas estate.

T. B. McNary, investigator, said Mrs. Buchanan and a physician who filed the certificate were cleared of any criminal wrongdoing. McNary concluded his report by stating the birth certificate was filed shortly after Miss Borman's child was taken into the Buchanan home. Other records revealed that attorneys for the estate in England had served notice they would file a civil suit to have the birth certificate nullified.

From that estate Mrs. Buchanan receives $16,000 yearly, authorities said.

country as compared to other countries."

"I can see more clearly how fortunate we are, in spite of our misfortunes," he added.

"I am fully aware of the suffering at home, for every mail brings to me here in the Philippine Islands letters from people who are out of work, who want aid, or who want a position. I do not for a moment belittle these trials.

"I know what they are and feel with the suffering, but I can see, however, in spite of the difficulties through which our country is going, its condition is infinitely better than that of the vast majority of the rest of the nations of the world.

"Our country has been particularly fortunate because in times of great national need a man has arisen in the nation capable of facing the crisis and setting the feet of our people on the proper road.

"We have that man at this time.

Hoover's American Qualities.

"It is our President, Herbert Hoover. He personifies the characteristics that we like to believe are American. The story of his life is an epitome of the qualities that made America great—personal integrity, sensible, daring devotion to ideals and common sense.

"For the last three years he has held steadfastly to the vision that inspired the framers of the Declaration of Independence, a vision toward which we have been laboriously struggling for the past 150 years, and to which the lives of our best and bravest have been dedicated. No man in the United States has suffered more than he. No man has worked harder.

"I am a convinced liberal and have always believed most sincerely that the world was made for the many, not for the few. Wherever possible my work has been to that end. One of the reasons I have always believed in Herbert Hoover is because he always thought first of the workman and the farmer."

Asserting that the President had been "reviled and abused from one end of the country to the other," Roosevelt said that was "testimony of his greatness."

"That has been the fate of all of our great men in every time of crisis," he added. "Washington was burnt in effigy when he was President. Abraham Lincoln was pilloried and scurrilously attacked in every State in the Union, both North and South. Grover Cleveland, my father, and Wilson fared in like manner. Now it is Hoover's turn."

Roosevelt said President Hoover had "done notably."

"No one could have met conditions in finer and more competent fashion," he added. "Under his leadership there is a solid record of achievement that no other country can boast. With sincerity, intelligence and singleness of purpose he has devoted himself to the task that lay before him.

Practical Remedies Created.

"Day and night he has labored. He has not merely met situations as they arose, but in addition has devised and put into practice a far-reaching scheme to rehabilitate the country and reestablish happiness and prosperity in the land. * * *

"While battling to put into effect these sound and comprehensive policies, he had in addition to defeat attempt after attempt to promulgate foolish or pernicious doctrines that would have destroyed the foundations on which our country rests and the ideals toward which we are all striving. * * *

"The Republican party, under President Hoover, has set up practical agencies for leading the country back to prosperity. To be successful, these must be administered by the men whose wisdom devised them for the purposes and in the spirit they were conceived."

Roosevelt said "no one on earth could have stopped the collapse of the world economically, and granting this, no one could have fended its effects from the United States."

"Nevertheless," he added, "human nature is such that there are hundreds of thousands of American today, angry because of the fact that they are in worse condition than they were three years ago, who blame everything on Hoover. They would scuttle the lifeboat that is carrying them through the storm because it is not as comfortable as the liner they were forced to leave."

HOOVER AND RITCHIE TO SPEAK TONIGHT IN INDIANA CAPITAL

p. m. central standard time in the Butler University field house, five miles removed from the center of town. The Maryland governor will speak in the Cadle Tabernacle near the business section.

His Indianapolis address today occupied Mr. Hoover's attention principally. In it his aids expect him to make a critical analysis of statements by his Democratic opponent, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and outline Republican economic efforts and policies anew.

Even while marshaling these campaign views, however, Mr. Hoover gave thought also to the things he will discuss next Monday on a swift eight-stop swing through Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, to be climaxed by an address in Madison Square Garden Monday night.

During an interlude in this preparation he was given a fresh reminder of his New York address.

Elephants Visit White House.

Two live elephants, emblems of the G. O. P., were led into the White House yard, their sides placarded with such statements as "This is an elephant's job and no time for donkey business," and "Young Republicans, tune in on Hoover's New York speech."

Kenneth Uglow, president of the Young Republican League, who borrowed the pachyderms from a local theater, explained to White House aids that his organization had arranged a series of county meetings in every State for Monday night, and that each gathering would tune in on the New York address. He told Mr. Hoover he could pledge 5,000,000 votes on November 8.

The President posed with a group of the Young Republicans, who stood with their live elephant symbols as a background. Uglow presented the Chief Executive with a G. O. P. emblem for his lapel.

In an aside from political affairs, Mr. Hoover at about the same time, presented a "President's flag" adorned with four stars and the Executive emblem to Commander L. J. Gulliver, skipper of the U. S. S. Constitution.

Mrs. Hoover Is Present,

Mrs. Hoover, Secretary Adams, Mrs. Adams, Ernest Lee Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and a group of enlisted men from the ancient frigate witnessed the presentation of the 20-foot-long emblem.

Save for these brief ceremonies, and two conferences held in the executive offices, Mr. Hoover secluded himself for virtually the entire day in the White House proper so that he might work without interruption upon his speeches.

In the offices he talked with Secretary Wilbur, who has just returned from a protracted swing around the country during which he delivered several speeches in Mr. Hoover's behalf, and with Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Home Loan Discount Bank System.

Fort said he reported that the bank system was progressing satisfactorily and that he was leaving to deliver a series of Republican campaign speeches in the Midwwest, beginning tonight at Appleton, Wis., and continuing on through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Men, Boys and Woman Held in Robbery Cases

Treasury Secretary, in Utica Speech, Says Democrat Lacks Real Issue.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, in an address here tonight criticized Gov. Roosevelt's administration at Albany and what he termed his "lack of definite issues" in the presidential campaign.

Mr. Mills also reviewed at length what he said was "reckless extravagance" in New York State under Democratic rule, whereas at Washington, he asserted, the Republican national administration took advantage of the years of plenty to reduce the national debt by about $900,000,000.

"Speaking of prohibition, he said, "conditions under the eighteenth amendment are highly unsatisfactory." "A majority of the people want a change," he said. "But they are equally determined not to return to the conditions which brought the eighteenth amendment into being. Our candidate for the Presidency offers a constructive solution that will meet both of these conditions. The Democratic candidate and party propose to return to the conditions which existed prior to the eighteenth amendment. I do not believe that this will meet with the approval of the American people and the Democratic promise, therefore, is one impossible of fulfillment."

MILLS RAPS ALBANY RULE OF ROOSEVELT

Three men, two boys and a woman were arrested yesterday in connection with a series of housebreakings and burglaries in Georgetown and the downtown section, according to police, who said that property worth $1,500 was recovered in their investigation. The arrests were made by Detective Sergt. Aubrey M. Tolson.

The six identified themselves as August Koenig, 18, and William Schutt, 13, of 452 K street northwest; George A. Poore, 19, of 1124 Eighth street northwest; Henry F. Walker, 19, of 3333 N street northwest, and Mamie Ethel Reeves, 35, and Frank Reeves, 14, of 1102 Fifth street northwest.

on a par with other falsehoods designed for the same purpose, and I suppose that I will be kept busy denying equally unfounded fabrications from now until election day.

"The story is too absurd really to merit attention. I do not think that anybody familiar with the method in which we have sought to carry on this campaign would think that I, or any other responsible officer of the organization, had appealed to foreign interests for finances to help overturn the Republican administration in the United States. As everybody knows, every contribution must be accounted for in our reports to Washington, and our accounts are checked and audited.

"I do not know how to characterize this piece of political indency any more than I have done. There is not a word of truth, either in the substance of the letter or in the insinuations of the Republican headquarters that preceded and will follow it."

PEACE GATHERING ENDS IN TURMOIL

all times were at the service of St. Marys County."

The Rev. Joseph Sheridan Knight, of St. Aloysius Roman Catholic Church, Leonardtown, stated there should be no objection to the deputization of State police "so we could get them when we needed them quickly instead of waiting to be summoned from the Waldorf substation, 35 miles away."

Publicity resulting from the robberies and holdups was "deplored" by Joseph M. Mattingly, clerk of Circuit Court.

A resolution was offered by A. F. King, editor of a weekly newspaper here, commending the conduct of Sheriff Hammett and calling for a vote of confidence in St. Marys County officers and asserting that "they were fully able to handle the situation without outside interference."

The Rev. Father Knight objected to the resolution on the grounds it had been prepared before the meeting and had no connection with the discussion. It was withdrawn as was a similar resolution offered by Dr. Greenwell.

State Senator J. Allen Coad spoke in defense of all St. Marys County officials and condemned "the newspapers in general" for "alarming untrue stories of outlaws existing in the county."

Mrs. Henry S. Durrough, of Chattico, president of the Parent-Teacher Association of Margaret Grant High School, demanded Sheriff Hammett express his views for refusing to deputize the State police.

He sat in a corner with his attorney, Henry Camelar, but finally arose and said he did not want to be responsible for the action of the State policemen.

After Mrs. Durrough asked why prisoners of the Leonardtown Jail were allowed to "roam the streets at will," bedlam broke out and few could be heard above the din. The question was not answered during the meeting.

Thieves Make Cigarette Haul.

William M. Crapp, manager of the A. & P grocery store at Fourteenth and Wallace streets northwest, reported to police that a window of the store was broken Wednesday night and 68 tins of cigarettes were stolen.

SIX MILLIONS LENT ILLINOIS FOR RELIEF

R. F. C. Also Advances to Mississippi $850,000; New Debentures.

(Associated Press.)

New millions in relief loans were handed out yesterday by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as it sought new resources through a big bond issue.

To the governor of Illinois went $5,303,150—the bulk of it to be used in Cook County—while $850,000 for relief purposes was granted to Mississippi.

At the same time the corporation also authorized the issuance of a billion dollars of debentures bearing interest at 3½ per cent to mature April 30, 1933, of which $675,000,000 will replace notes maturing today and $325,000,000 will provide new funds.

In a busy day the corporation completed the roster of agricultural credit corporations formed under the reconstruction act by announcing the establishment of regional agency at Baltimore to serve the Second Federal Land Bank District, comprising Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia.

Another development was an application to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the New York Central Railroad for permission to borrow $2,500,000 from the Reconstruction Corporation for repairing and restoring equipment.

An echo of the corporation's plan to bid on $40,000,000 of bonds of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California was heard in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, where eight Californians were permitted to intervene in proceedings opposing the plan.

The contention that the water supply project which the corporation has agreed to aid is not self-liquidating but dependent upon taxation for financing was advanced by those intervening in the proceedings begun by Ralph P. Burnham and others.

Of the relief loan to Illinois, $5,554,500 goes to Cook County, in which Chicago is located. The loan is to care for relief needs from November 1 to December 1 and brings to $20,303,150 the total which has been received by Illinois. The maximum that can be advanced to any one State is $45,000,000.

The loan to Mississippi is to cover relief needs in 70 counties and 13 cities over the same period.

The New York Central Railroad in seeking a loan told the Interstate Commerce Commission its plan called for repair of cars at the East Buffalo and Indianapolis shops and estimated this would give jobs to 1,500 men for seven to eight months on a five-day week.

An alternative plan which the road said would be followed if business improves would employ 1,960 men for five months with prospects of also providing work on hopper cars at Avis, Pa.; stock cars at Toledo, Ohio, and locomotives at West Albany, N. Y.; Cleveland and Indianapolis.

ROOSEVELT PLEDGES ASSAILED BY HURLEY

Autocrat Needed to Carry Out Promises, Cabinet Member Says.

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley at a Republican rally here tonight said "no dictator the world has ever known has had the power that would enble him to redeem the promises that have been made to the people by Gov. Roosevelt."

"If Gov. Roosevelt could put in force one-tenth of the promises he has made," the secretary declared, "he would not only deprive the people of their control of the Government—he would establish an autocracy with himself as the autocrat."

Declaring himself opposed to "any concentration of power, bureaucratic or autocratic, in Washington that will break down local government," Secretary Hurley said:

"An all-powerful central government given free rein to impose its will on the people would soon reduce the States to a status of provinces and subject the individual citizen to the dictates of a new tyranny."

Richmond, Va., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Announcement that Lady Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne, of Virginia, will come to Richmond and speak at the opening of the community fund campaign on November 10 was made today after a transatlantic telephone conversation between the British peeress and Parliament member, and Julian M. 4 OF 8 IN POLITICAL MURDER PLOT FREED

Both State and Defense Rest in Texas Conspiracy to Slay Three Men.

Rio Grande City, Tex., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Four of eight men originally accused of plotting to murder three political opponents in the town of Donna, Tex., stood clear of the charges as trial of their fellows progressed to the stage of arguments in district court here today.

Both State and defense rested at noon. Counsel for those on trial—A. F. Dargel, E. J. Farnsworth, L. E. Schultz and W. H. McLelland—offered no witnesses and asked instructed verdicts of acquittal, which the court denied.

George W. Ruthven, Stokes Cheney and Luther Lepley were granted immunity for testifying for the prosecution. Walter Van Allen was exonerated today, Judge Hood Boone granting a motion for an instructed verdict of acquittal in his case.

Ruthven, Lepley and Cheney said $450 was raised last February to hire an assassin to do away with Walter Weaver, attorney for the Donna irrigation district; Harry Ridgway, business manager of the district, and T. W. Hooks, associate of Weaver, all of whom had supported the perennially successful "regular Democratic" members of the board of the irrigation district.

Ruthven testified today Lepley brought to his home money with which Gregorio Guzman, a Mexican, was to be paid for "eliminating" Weaver, Hooks and Ridgway, but he said Lepley never told him who donated the fund.

"Lepley," said the witness, "always told us he was taking care of the money end and it wasn't our business."

He said there had been many charges of misconduct concerning affairs of the irrigation district.

Accused Matricide Is Termed Insane

Physician Tells of Man's Coolness as Wounds Were Dressed.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The "cool unmoved" manner of John K. Boyle the night after his mother was stabbed to death on Shades Mountain was that of an insane man, a physician testified today.

The physician, Dr. J. D. Heacock, was testifying for the defense in the trial of the socially-prominent young attorney on charges of murdering his mother, Mrs. Jessie Boyle, 66, last June 13. The physician described as "most unusual" Boyle's calmness a few hours after his mother's throat had been severed and her body pushed over a cliff.

Dr. Heacock said he dressed Boyle's wounds, which he claimed were inflicted by the bandit who killed his mother, and that one of them missed the jugular vein by only a fraction of an inch. The attorney's actions at that time and since led to the conclusion that he was not normal, the physician said.

Previously an aunt of the defendant, Mrs. Mary L. Averett, had testified that Boyle's paternal grandfather had been an inmate of an Iowa asylum over a period of years, and that there were two intermarraiges in the family.

CORRUPTION PLAINTS REACH CHICAGO JURY

Secret Six Directors and Swanson Dispute Charges of Wire Tapping.

Chicago, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Charges of corruption in the State's attorney's office reached the grand jury today as Prosecutor John A. Swanson engaged in a sharp exchange with directors of the Secret Six, crime-fighting private body that was created at his instance.

Robert Isham Randolph, head of the Secret Six and former president of the Association of Commerce, went before the grand jury to substantiate the allegation that his agents bought criminal records from an employe of the State's attorney for $100.

His testimony was not disclosed, but Randolph said in public: "We are not through. The tapped-wire stories will explain everything. I think our photostatic copies are good evidence."

Political Motives Charged.

Swanson, a candidate for reelection, imputed political motives to the publication of the charges a fortnight before election day; demanded evidence and the prosecution of any one in his office proved corrupt, and said evidence had been given him that Randolph and various companies and associations with which he was connected had received $50,000 from the sanitary district of Chicago.

"It is because of his fear of the knowledge the State's attorney now has," said Swanson, "that he is so vehement in his charges against me in his efforts to intimidate me and discredit my administration."

Former Chief Agent.

Alexander Jamie, operating director of the "Secret Six," was also a witness before the grand jury and was directed to return tomorrow, bringing the investigator alleged to have paid $100 bribe for the secret records from the prosecutor's office. Jamie was understood to have said he could produce the investigator, although the man no longer was in the employ of the "Secret Six."

Jamie was formerly chief of special agents for the Prohibition Bureau here. He recently accused State's attorney's investigators of tapping telephone lines of the "Secret Six" Loop office, and disclosed at the same time that he had for months been conducting a secret inquiry into alleged underworld connections in the prosecutor's force. Swanson at the time welcomed a full inquiry.

4 Americans to Review Parade With Mussolini

Rome, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Four Americans will ride for the first time with the personal staff of Premier Mussolini tomorrow when he reviews the parade of 15,000 Fascist disabled war veterans as the climax of several day's celebration of the Fascist decennial.

The premier set a new precedent in inviting more than 100 foreign military and naval attaches to ride with him. The Americans, who will appear in full uniform, are Col. E. R. Warner McCabe, military attache; Capt. Macgillivray Milne, naval attache; Capt. Francis M. Brady, assistant military attache, and Lieut. Comdr. Frederick W. Pennoyer, jr., assistant naval attache.

SMITH BOOMS PARTY TICKET IN BAY STATE

sity for new and additional forms of taxation, and consequently in the spring of this year, at a time when the people could least bear it, at a time when taxation was a great hardship, at a time when taxation was bound to retard business and economic recovery, when all of the new and additional and burdensome and so-called nuisance taxes were imposed upon the American people—gasoline, the additional penny when you mail a letter, taxes on amusements—every form of taxation calculated to annoy and distress the people—imposed upon them at a time when they were least able to bear it.

Says Expenses Not Cut.

"In the meantime, with every opportunity at hand, absolutely nothing was done by the Republican administration to curtail the cost of Government, although from the platform of 1920, right up to the platform of 1928, they promised reorganization and reconstruction of the Federal Government in order to cut out overlapping and waste and duplication of effort, looking not only to efficiency, but to a greater economy in the conduct of the Nation's business."

Later, turning to Secretary of War Hurley, he said:

"I don't know how much he had to do with the Bonus Expeditionary Force.

"The President is the head of the Army and Navy. Those men camped in Washington were members of the Army and Navy. It was his business to go and talk with them. * * *

"It was his business to explain the financial condition of the country to them. He should have done it. Instead of it they encouraged them to remain in Washington until they had to be driven out by the armed forces of the Government.

"Then the Secretary of War went out and tried to explain it.

Moses' Name Booed.

"We have one more character to deal with," Smith said. "He is the President pro tem of the Senate. The senator from New Hampshire." This reference brought a chorus of boos.

"I am not a suspicious person," said Smith. "I have the kindliest feelings for every living being. But I'm a little bit suspicious when Senator Moses gets so excited because I wasn't nominated.

"I was not satisfied with that Chicago convention, and I know you were not satisfied. I say, listen, we will settle these troubles in our own party."

The crowd roared.

The thousands within the building and the other thousands who choked the streets outside knew long before Smith arrived to make his speech that in Rhode Island earlier in the day he had called on his "New England friends" not to stay away from the polls; not to write his name in on the presidential ballot, but to vote the Roosevelt-Garner ticket.

While they waited four hours for the star orator of the night, they tested their lungs by roaring their reaction to the repeated references made to Roosevelt, Smith and Speaker Garner by preliminary speakers.

They also set up a din whenever any one from the platform called for the defeat of President Hoover.

EMPLOYMENT DATA SHOW SLIGHT GAIN

Green Expects, However, Seasonal Rise Will Be Lost Soon.

(Associated Press.)

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday said affiliated unions reported a continued slight gain in employment.

"In the first part of October," he said in a statement, "unemployment decreased by eight-tenths of one per cent of the membership. Small as this gain is, it is the largest in any month this year.

"Progress since July, when union unemployment reached its peak, is as follows, according to our weighted figures: In July 25.4 per cent of the membership were out of work; in August, 25.1; September, 24.8; October, 24 (preliminary figure covering first half). In these three months 1.4 per cent of the membership have gone back to work."

Green termed the reports encouraging "as an indication of seasonal business improvement," but added that "as relief for the millions unemployed they show small progress indeed." He repeated an earlier estimate that "at least 13,000,000 will be out of work by January, 1933."

"Our estimate for total employment in the United States based on Government indexes also shows gains," Green said. "In September 560,000 persons went back to work, according to preliminary figures, but 10,900,000 were still unemployed. * * * These gains are almost entirely seasonal and when November brings layoffs as it always does, most of this gain will probably be lost."

National Forgery Gang Leader Suspect Caught

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Leo Carr, 38, described by Department of Justice agents as "the professor," or ring leader of a national forgery gang, was arrested quietly at his home in the Bronx today after a world-wide search.

He was arraigned before a United States Commissioner on a fugitive-from-justice warrant, charging him with being implicated in a securities swindle that netted $131,426 in Jacksonville, Fla., last May. Edward Ball, vice president and manager of Almours Securities, at Jacksonville, victim of the swindle, said Carr's gang was reputed to have obtained $26,000,000 in its Nation-wide operations.

Grand Jury Urged To Curb Floggings

Florida Judge Denounces Lash Reign of Terror in Open Court.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The Duval County grand jury was brought into open court today and instructed by Circuit Judge George Couper Gibbs to protect residents from mob floggings.

The jurist's charge was prompted by more than a score of persons reporting to Jacksonville police they had been whipped recently by a gang that had accused them of offenses, including the selling of liquor, running disorderly houses, failing to support families and disregarding custom that segregates white dwellings from Negro residential sections.

Judge Gibbs told the jurors to investigate the floggings "deeply," and said "the integrity of this State and the administration of justice is at stake."

He described conditions as "deplorable" and pledged the resources of the court and all law-enforcement agencies to aid them.

Check in Employment Decline Is Reported

A slowing up in the decline of Federal employment in the District was reported yesterday by E. Claude Babcock, secretary of the Civil Service Commission. The reduction in personnel in September was 189 persons—the lowest since June, he said.

The total employed here at the end of September was 67,070, according to the commission's statistics.

CULBERTSON AHEAD IN BRIDGE TOURNEY

Hal Sims Also Survives Early Vanderbilt Cup Sessions in New York.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Fat, jovial Philip Hal Sims and slim, high-strung Ely Culbertson led their rival contract bridge foursomes tonight through the first of the "knockout" sessions they hope will bring them face to face in the Vanderbilt Cup final two nights hence.

Sims' team—Willard S. Karn, his partner; Harold S. Vanderbilt, donor of the trophy, and Waldemar von Zedtwitz, Bridge League president—was in one bracket.

The Culbertson quartet—his partner, Oswald Jacoby, Theodore Lightner and Michael J. Gottlieb—was in the other.

The field, largest in the five-year history of the competition, was reduced to sixteen qualifying teams at the conclusion of elimination sessions in the small hours of this morning, and tonight's play reduced it to eight.

The casualties of the qualifying round included exactly half of the 23 women who entered and the only team from outside the Metropolitan district—N. T. Trembath, Carleton C. Jones, Howard H. Foster and Charles Epstein, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The Culbertson and Sims teams led their sections in the qualifying round and there were no upsets.

A typical example of the type of play that put Sims on top was furnished by this hand:

NORTH.
S.—K, Q, J, 9, 7.
H.—9, 3, 2.
D.—J, 9, 2.
C.—K, 3.

WEST.	EAST.
S.—10, 3.	S.—A, 6, 4, 2.
H.—8, 5.	H.—A, Q, J, 10.
D.—K, Q, 10, 5, 3.	D.—6, 4.
C.—Q, 10, 4, 2.	C.—J, 8, 5.

SOUTH.
S.—8, 5.
H.—K, 7, 6, 4.
D.—A, 8, 7.
C.—A, 9, 7, 6.

Neither side was vulnerable and South the dealer.

The hand was played by South at no trump and most players had little trouble making three after an opening lead of the King of Diamonds by West.

The bidding, with East and West passing, went: South, pass; North, one Spade; South, two No Trump, and all pass.

But when Sims and Karn played the hand, sitting North and South, respectively, Sims went on to bid the three No Trump after Karn's bid of two.

"I figured on a break or a misplay by the opponents to make the contract," he said characteristically in the post-mortem.

A call was issued for the deposit of all first mortgage bonds with this committee, for which certificates of deposit will be issued by the Chase National Bank, of New York, which has been designated as the depository.

U. S.-BRITISH PACT ON NAVY CUT PUSHED

its national needs. Great Britain, with far-flung naval bases and strategic colonies, wants a great number of small ships. Thus the British idea of naval reduction would be the cutting down of individual tonnage without affecting the number of ships. The United States, on the other hand, considers it vital to retain the battleship and the large cruiser. Reductions should be made in the number of ships. Japan has its particular national need. This is in the submarine, a category which the United States and Great Britain would like to abolish, but which Japan, France and Italy are intent upon retaining.

The armament programs of the United States and Great Britain present more hope for reconciliation than the contentions of any other powers. It has been found increasingly difficult to bring France and Italy together on the basis of the London treaty which they have not yet signed. For this reason Mr. Davis has been exploring the British naval sentiment with the purpose of squaring it with the President's proposal as far as is consistent with admiralty reservations.

The basis of the Anglo-American compromise is believed to permit both the United States and Great Britain the retention of naval categories which they require. However, strict limitations would be placed on the total tonnage of these categories. If both countries agree to keep battleships to such a hypothetical figure as 500,000 tons, the United States could build its 35,000-ton battleships and Great Britain the smaller type. On the same principle the cruiser tonnage would be limited to an agreed quota, possibly 300,000 tons. Within this quota, however, the American Navy could construct its 10,000-ton cruisers and Great Britain the cruisers of lesser tonnage. The total tonnage in any event would not be greater than the agreed amount.

This harks back to the principle which France formerly insisted upon at the disarmament conferences, the principle of global tonnage. The difference in this plan is that it rigorously limits the categories in which variable tonnage can be built. Under the French system a nation with a 200,000-ton limit could construct 200,000 tons of submarines, or destroyers or any other category.

However, all further disarmament conversations will have to be put in abeyance until satisfaction is given German aspirations for recognition of her claims to armament. The settlement of the matter of German equality at the disarmament conversations has lagged ever since the German delegation announced it would not sit at Geneva and France insisted that Geneva was the proper place for such a discussion.

New York Court Restrains Wardman Investor Group

Gustave Nassauer, Claiming Ownership of $11,000,000 First Mortgage, Wins Order Against Disposal of Property Auctioned Here.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The bondholders' protective committee which forced a foreclosure suit against the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., of Washington, D. C., was directed in an order filed in Supreme Court today to show cause why it should not be restrained from reorganizing, operating or disposing of the Wardman properties.

The order was obtained from Justice Philip J. McCook by Gustave Nassauer, who has brought suit here to have himself declared the owner of $11,000,000 in first mortgage bonds of the properties.

Paul A. Brunn and Milton Schilbach, the purchasers in the foreclosure suit, also were named in the show cause order, which is returnable on Monday.

Nassauer said the question of his ownership of the bonds hinges upon an agreement he claims to have had with Harry Wardman and James D. Hobbs, of Washington. He was to receive the entire issue of bonds, he said, for his services in arranging for refinancing the Wardman properties in 1928.

Instead, he declared, the bonds were used by Halsey, Stuart & Co. as security for a $2,500,000 issue of debenture bonds and when a default occurred in the interest payments the bondholders' protective committee was formed and the foreclosure suit brought.

Nassauer said he brought his actions in New York because a Washington court refused him permission to intervene in the foreclosure suit.

HALLOWEEN RULES LISTED BY POLICE

Regulations for Celebration Include No Parking in Parade Area.

Issuing a list of "dos and don'ts," the Police Department yesterday served warning that joy must be restrained to some extent in the Bicentennial Halloween celebration Monday night.

Chief Inspector M. W. Thayer, of the Fire Department, announced the following rules: No open flame in inflammable floats; jack-o-lanterns to be lighted with electric lights; inflammable decorations on floats to be kept away from exhaust pipes and mufflers; fireworks will be prohibited, but flares may be used for street lighting.

More than 100 entries in the parade have been received by the Greater National Capital committee which is cooperating with the Federation of Citizens Associations in sponsoring the celebration.

Commission Continues Drive on Rental Cabs

Continuing its fight to break up rental taxicab operation, the Public Utilities Commission yesterday notified the U. S. Employes' Compensation Commission that all cabs must be operated by the owner or an employe so that the latter commission can force employers to take out workmen's compensation insurance.

Meanwhile, William A. Roberts, special counsel, is gathering a number of affidavits from drivers with the intent of prosecuting certain cab companies which are reported to be evading the rental provision of the utilities body's order.

SECRECY SHROUDS PARLEY ON CHACO

White Says Progress Made at Meeting of Neutrals and Warring Nations.

(Associated Press.)

Secrecy surrounded the opening meeting of neutral diplomats with delegates of Bolivia and Paraguay yesterday as they laid a new course by which they hope to terminate the long and bitter controversy over possession of the Chaco.

Assistant Secretary Francis White of the State Department, who headed the commission which for nearly a year made futile efforts to find a basis for a pact of nonaggression between Bolivia and Paraguay, presided at the inaugural session yesterday. His only comment after adjournment was that "satisfactory progress had been made."

White declined to be interviewed, nor would he say when the meetings would be renewed. By agreement among themselves, the neutrals and disputants' representatives would not comment on the progress of the session, saying White had been selected as spokesman for the group.

Bolivia was represented by Dr. Enrique Finot, recently appointed representative here, who for the past year has served with Dr. Eduardo Diez de Medina as delegate to the nonaggression pact conference. Dr. Diez de Medina, who was not appointed to represent Bolivia after the new deliberations were begun, was not present yesterday. His official connection with the Chaco negotiations here ended with the final breakdown of efforts to draft a nonaggression treaty.

Dr. Juan Jose Soler represented Paraguay. Pablo Ynsfran, acting charge d'affaires, did not attend.

In addition to White, who acted for the United States, the neutral representatives were Dr. Pablo Campos-Ortiz, acting charge d'affaires of the Mexican Embassy; Dr. Jose T. Baron, acting Cuban charge d'affaires; Dr. Fabio Lozano, Colombian minister, and Dr. Jacobo Varela, Uruguayan minister.

President Cashes Only One of 2 Pay Checks

President Hoover receives two salary checks every pay day, but only cashes one of them, George O. Barnes, Assistant Treasurer of the United States, disclosed yesterday.

The President has taken this method of applying the 20 per cent voluntary salary cut he ordered for himself. Each month the Treasury sends him one check for $5,000 and another for $1,250. The smaller he indorses and sends back.

Only one out of 200 constitutional judges to date has remitted any part of his salary under the "voluntary" provisions of the economy act. This judge sends in his personal check for the amount of the cut every pay day. Treasury officials will not divulge his name.

Cantor Holds Lead At Industry Show

Voting Machines Shown at Exposition Under Way at Auditorium.

Washingtonians seem to prefer Eddie Cantor for president. At least they prefer him over Al Jolson, his opponent in the burlesque election being held at the annual industrial exposition of the Washington Chamber of Commerce at the Washington Auditorium.

The "election" is part of the exhibit of the citizens' joint committee on national representation for the District. It includes a voting machine in operation, sample balloting forms from five States, and displays of other voting paraphernalia. Jesse C. Suter, vice chairman of the committee, is in charge of the exhibit.

Tonight will be "Washington Chamber of Commerce Night" at the trade show, and an appropriate program has been arranged.

Tomorrow night has been designated "District National Guard Night." The exhibit of the guard in the exposition will include a 3-inch antiaircraft artillery gun. Military demonstrations of various kinds will be given.

CHANGE IN BANKING SYSTEM ADVOCATED

More Ample Surplus Urged in Brookings Institution Aid's Study.

Asserting that the recent flood of bank failures throughout the United States has been due "only in part" to depression causes, Dr. Charles O. Hardy, of the Brookings Institution staff, argues in a study recently published by the institution that the danger of these insolvencies may be at least partly eliminated by requiring banks to maintain more ample capital and surplus in relation to deposits.

Pointing out the fact that from 1922 to 1931 there were 8,784 bank insolvencies in this country, the author concludes that while the United States "is not the only important country in which banks become insolvent, it is the only one in which they are allowed to fail."

Current Problems Analyzed.

Many current problems of central banking policy are examined by Dr. Hardy in his study on "Credit Policies of the Federal Reserve System."

Speaking with regard to the establishment of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the author states that it is to be regarded as "recognition of the fact that America, as elsewhere, the private business of banking is indissolubly tied up with public interest in maintaining a uniform means of payment which will command the confidence of the community, but since the Federal Reserve System and the Reserve Banks have no authority to require stockholders to provide greater equities, the policy of the system can be held responsible for the weakness of the banking structure only insofar as we can fairly require Federal Reserve authorities to look ahead and recommend remedial legislation before the need of it becomes apparent to all."

Experiment Is Seen.

"It would be unjustifiable," he says, "to impute to the Reserve System primary responsibility either for the prosperity which the country enjoyed during the major portion of the period under review, or for the disasters with which the decade closed; credit is not a panacea; it is an experiment."

Dr. Hardy indorsed the effort of the Federal Reserve System to control credit in the interest of business stability rather than price stability, but he finds no evidence that the system is able to exercise very much control over either one.

Mattingly, of Prince Georges County, while Jackson was sent back to jail to await a new trial. Earlier in the day another jury had convicted Clarence Sutton of stealing a suit and pistol from Frank Addison, of Fairmont Heights.

Fifteen arraignments in the court yesterday brought six pleas of guilty. Those who confessed the crimes charged against them were Peter York, larceny; William Watson, statutory offense; Oscar Hawkins, destroying private property; Owen Ingram, storebreaking; Daniel Brooks, larceny, and Ernest J. McDonald, possession. Hawkins' sentence was suspended as he had been in jail since his arrest in July.

R. F. C. Grants $3,000,000 For Nearby Farmer Loans

Regional Office Is Established at Baltimore to Aid Distressed Agriculturists of Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Delaware.

(Associated Press.)

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation took a step yesterday toward extending aid to hard-pressed Virginia and Maryland farmers by announcing the establishment of a regional agricultural credit corporation in the Second Federal Land Bank District.

While the exact policies for the agricultural corporations have not yet been formulated, they are expected to do for the farmer what other branches of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation have done for other industries—extend credit where credit can not be obtained through normal sources. Several loans for live-stock feed, with the live stock as security, already have been made by agricultural credit corporations previously established.

The corporation, with its main office in Baltimore, Md., will take care of farmers in Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, and West Virginia. It will have a capital of $3,000,000, to be subscribed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from funds provided for that purpose by Congress.

Branches will be established, but their locations have not yet been announced.

The only salaried officers will be the managers of the main office and branches.

The board of directors operating the corporation and the committees looking after the branches will receive only expenses and a per diem for the actual time spent attending meetings.

POLICE WIN DISPUTE ON POLITICAL SIGNS

Arlington Judge Refuses to Heed G. O. P. Protests; Legion Cuts Fee.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 309. Clarendon, Va.

Protests against police of Arlington County displaying Democratic campaign signs upon their automobiles came to an end yesterday when Judge Walter McCarthy, in replying to a letter from L. C. MacPherson, chairman of the Arlington County Republican committee, stated that he would not in any way interfere with the rights of the county police.

Judge McCarthy further said: "It is my idea that it went beyond the intention of the General Assembly in giving the judge of the Circuit Court the power of appointment of various county officers that he should thereby have the power of governing their tastes or proprieties in the conduct of their officers."

The controversy started sometime ago when Chairman MacPherson wrote to the county chairman of the board, Harry A. Fellows. Receiving no satisfaction a letter was then directed to Judge McCarthy, of the Circuit Court.

In line with the general reduction in the cost of living, Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, announces a 40 per cent reduction in its membership fee. In combination with an intensive membership drive the post is planning an unusual armistice day celebration.

To safeguard the public from the dangers from impure milk sold in Arlington County, Dr. P. M. Chichester announced yesterday that all persons or firms selling milk in the county will be required to display a permit. The permits may be obtained from the health office at the courthouse without any charge.

This ruling, Dr. Chichester pointed out, will not only apply to all local dealers but to those from outside the county who furnish milk in Arlington.

Organization of a Roosevelt-Garner Club will be perfected at a special meeting of former service men of Arlington County tonight, according to R. Blakeley James. The meeting will be held in the Democratic headquarters located in the Rees Building at Clarendon.

Cherrydale Precinct, of the Arlington County Democratic Woman's Club will hold a benefit 500 and bridge party tonight at the home of Mrs. Grace Donaldson, No. 1 Mackey street.

A Halloween dance for the benefit of the Barcroft School and Civic League will be held tonight in the Community House. F. Y. Benson is chairman in charge of the arrangements.

Fairfax Club Aids Voters of Virginia

Multitude of Candidates Makes Ballot Marking Serious Problem.

A large amount of confusion in the casting of votes during the general election in Virginia this year is expected by the leaders of both major political parties. The leaders state that a large number of votes may be void because of improper marking any they are conducting vigorous campaigns to instruct the voters as to the proper marking. There will be 85 names on the ballots this year and because of the decision of the Virginia Supreme Court, declaring the redistricting act unconstitutional, the 24 candidates for the House of Representatives are all running "at large" and must be voted for throughout the State. Ballots will be voided if more than nine names for these offices are left on the ballot.

To give the voters of Fairfax County the necessary information regarding the marking of ballots, the Young Democratic Club of Fairfax County has appointed precinct workers.

Montgomery Red Cross Relief Record Praised

The Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross was commended for its excellent relief work in an address last night by Walter Davidson, assistant director of the Eastern area of the American Red Cross. Mr. Davidson spoke at the annual dinner of the county chapter, held in the Hungerford Tavern at Rockville, Md.

Miss Estelle Moore, chairman, reviewed work of the chapter in the past year and said that the local body has followed the policy of cooperating with other social and relief agencies rather than duplicating the work. She pointed out that the chapter has established a visiting nurse service for the county in the past month. The Rev. G. H. Crook, of Poolesville, also spoke.

MONTGOMERY JURY LIST IS SELECTED

Rockville Bar Witnesses Ceremony; Judge Is in Charge.

Jurors for the November term of Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md., were chosen yesterday. Judge Charles W. Woodward for the first time officiated at the drawing. The names of the jurors were drawn from a large box which contained thirteen compartments, one for each election district.

The drawing was held in the presence of the entire membership of the Rockville bar. The judge will select a foreman and 22 others from the list on the first day of court, November 14, to serve as the county grand jury. The remaining 25 will serve as petit jurors. For the first time in nine years former Judge Robert B. Peter attended the drawing as a mere spectator instead of the presiding judge.

Jurors drawn by districts were:

Laytonsville, Francis M. Plummer, Charles M. Etchison, Percy Price; Clarksburg, Harry Hoskinson, Webster V. Burdette, Joseph G. Howes; Poolesville, Noah E. Clark, Charles E. Oland, Clarence E. Green Appointed To Judicial Post

Will Succeed Judge Moss December 1 on Fifth Circuit Bench.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 27.—Gov. Ritchie this afternoon announced the appointment of Nicholas H. Green, of Annapolis, former State's attorney for Anne Arundel, to be associate or resident judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, which comprises Howard and Carroll Counties, in addition to Anne Arundel.

Mr. Green will take office December 1, succeeding Judge Robert Moss, whose fifteen-year term expires. Naming of Mr. Green will serve closer to unite the Democratic forces in the county. The governor called him to his offices in the State House and personally informed him of his appointment.

Mr. Green served fourteen years as county prosecutor. That was some years back. Since then he had opposed the regular "organization" forces, aligning himself with the faction known as the "progressives." The path for his selection to the judgeship was cleared when State Senator Ridgely P. Melvin, to whom it had been tendered, declined and recommended Mr. Green. This move met the approval of Frank S. Revell, clerk of the circuit court, and recognized Democratic leader, and it also assures Mr. Green's nomination for the full term at the next general election in 1934.

Son of Samuel Insull Sails for U. S. Today

Athens, Greece, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull, jr., who had planned to join his father here in the next few days, informed Mr. Insull by cable today that he had changed his mind and would sail tomorrow for America where his presence is required as vice president of the Insull utilities companies.

Insull senior presumably intends to remain here for the time being. The American authorities are trying to effect his extradition under an indictment which charges him with embezzlement and larceny in connection with the collapse of his vast utilities interests.

POLICE IN LONDON FIGHT 2,000 IDLE

quires certain recipients of government aid to furnish proof that they have no other means of subsistence.

It was specifically to protest against the "means test" that 2,000 jobless men and women from Scotland, Wales and many parts of England organized a "hunger march" which the authorities said was inspired by agents from Moscow.

Other Demonstrations.

Birmingham, England, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—A crowd of unemployed participated today in a demonstration against the "means test." There was no serious disorder.

Similarly at Manchester there was a demonstration but the police had little difficulty.

Glasgow, Scotland, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Glasgow police squads charged a mob of 10,000 unemployed near city hall today after a demonstration against the "means test."

The demonstrators marched on city hall seeking an audience with the city council, which was refused. Police had to use truncheons on them before they would disperse.

GIRL STUDENT HURT IN CHEMISTRY BLAST

Miss Charlotte Dyer Cut by Flying Glass at Alexandria.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Miss Charlotte Dyer, 17 years old, of 152 Hume avenue, Potomac, a student at the George Mason High School, was painfully cut about the face and hands by flying particles of broken glass yesterday while conducting an experiment in chemistry. She was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where she received first aid treatment, after which she went home.

According to C. H. Strader, principal of the school, Miss Dyer was given a test tube with chemicals to produce hydrogen gas. By mistake she picked up a test tube containing gunpowder and heated that resulting in the explosion. She is a member of a class of about 30 students, under the direction of W. J. Hillman. Several other members of the class were struck by the flying glass, but none was badly hurt.

Following a sentence of 30 days in jail, Thomas B. Hood, 24 years old, of Huntington, W. Va., while being taken from the Alexandria police courtroom to the patrol wagon, which was to transport him to the city jail, escaped, ran to the river about three blocks away, and started swimming. Sergt. George Everly commandeered a small boat and gave chase, capturing Hood just before he reached the nearby flats. Hood fought his captors, but was overpowered. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital and placed under guard.

Hood, with Jack Wray, Carl Weatherman and Joseph Gray, was arrested by Southern Railway Officers Harvey and Miller, on charges of trespassing. The four were convicted, but a fifth man was acquitted.

Officials of the American Water Works Co. will appear before an open meeting of the water committee of the Alexandria City Council tomorrow night to give their views relative to the movement launched by the council to secure reduced water rates and increased pressure. Councilman E. C. Davison, chairman, issued the call.

The committee has practically completed its task of taking testimony, and will now have in consultation engineers who will make estimates of the cost of construction of a new water system. In the event such a system is constructed, the city council will endeavor to borrow the necessary funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The Alexandria Water Co., which now controls the system, recently was granted a 10 per cent increase in rates, and a further increase of 30 per cent is pending before the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Members of the Alexandria Light Infantry, officially known as Company I, First Regiment, National Guard, will leave at 5 o'clock this afternoon for Berryville, to particiate in a parade there tonight.

A demonstration is being staged by officers of Clarke County to arouse interest among citizens to raise funds for a Berryville armory. A barbecue supper will be served, followed by a dance.

The Alexandria headquarters of the Salvation Army has secured a building at the southeast corner of King and Lee streets for homeless men and boys during the winter. Some necessary repair work is being done, and it is expected the building will be ready for occupancy by December 1. The Salvation Army will furnish lodging, breakfast and supper to transients.

Funeral services for James Keogh, a resident of Alexandria, who died Wednesday in Providence Hospital, Washington, and who lived at 821 Duke street, will be conducted from St. Mary's Catholic Church, Alexandria, at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, by the Very Rev. Thomas A. Rankin, pastor. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. Mr. Keogh was employed in the Washington Postoffice Department for many years.

Veteran Speakers See Victory for Democrats

Election of the entire Democratic ticket, both State and national, was urged in addresses made by Maj. Robert S. Hudgins and John J. McGinnis, both former service men, at the first meeting of the newly formed Montgomery County Veterans Democratic Club. The meeting was held in the National Guard Armory at Kensington, Md.

Maj. Howard Cutler, president of the club, introduced the speakers. He announced that a number of other meetings, in support of the Democratic candidates, would be held prior to election.

Alexandria Red Cross To Sew for Needy

The Alexandria Chapter of the American Red Cross has received 11,000 yards of cotton cloth from the Government, which will shortly be made into garments and distributed among the needy of the city, and also to those homes of which the head is unemployed.

Beginning Monday, members of various church societies and school associations will start work on the sewing of the garments. It is expected a date for distribution will be announced prior to December 1.

How Coughs and Colds Yield to Creosote

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

C. C. Carlin and Rust Will Address Rally

An old-fashioned Democratic rally will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Potters Hill schoolhouse, in Fairfax County, Va., on Telegraph road, between Alexandria and Franconia, Va.

The meeting will be under the direction of Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, delegate to the State Assembly from Fairfax County, and the principal speakers will be Charles C. Carlin, of Alexandria, former representative from the Eighth Virginia Congressional District, and State Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax.

Virginia Vote Safe, Hurley Declares

Secretary's Optimism Is Quoted by Campaign Leader in State.

(Associated Press.)

Jennings C. Wise, a special assistant to the Attorney General, said in a statement yesterday that Secretary Hurley had expressed to him the view that Virginia was "safe again" for the Republican party.

"We want you to come to Virginia and put on the finishing touches," Wise said he told the Secretary.

"That's unnecessary," he quoted the Secretary as replying. "I was coming, but they need me elsewhere. According to my information, the Old Dominion is safe again for our kind of democracy. That splendid fighting crowd of Republicans down there have done the trick. Bully for Old Virginny."

$165 in Clothing Stolen.

Margaret E. Trammell, 643 N street southwest, reported to police that a fur evening wrap, valued at $100, and a suit case, containing clothing worth $65, were stolen yesterday afternoon from her automobile, which was parked on Eighteenth street between C and D streets.

1932 POTOMAC SHAD CATCH NEAR RECORD

Fishermen of Virginia and Maryland Make Profit of $173,353.

(Associated Press.)

Virginia and Maryland fishermen made a catch of shad in the Potomac River in 1932 which was the third largest in history. Information made public yesterday by the Commerce Department's Bureau of Fisheries said the 1932 catch of Potomac River shad included 352,745 roes and 422,711 bucks, totaling 2,264,168 pounds, valued at $173,353 to the fishermen. The catch of alewives for the season amounted to 17,109,533 fish with a total weight of 6,844,613 pounds and valued at $24,041.

These figures indicate an increase of 10 per cent in the volume of shad taken in the Potomac River and a decrease of 10 per cent in the value of the shad catch as compared with 1931. The catch of alewives decreased 7 per cent, and the total value of alewives decreased 57 per cent.

The Bureau of Fisheries pointed out that the average value to the fishermen of shad in 1932 was 7.7 cents a pound, as compared with 9.4 cents a pound in 1931. The average value of alewives in 1932 was $1.41 per thousand as compared with $3.02 per thousand in 1931.

About 47 per cent of the shad, from the standpoint of weight, were taken in pound nets, 52 per cent in gill nets and the rest with haul seins. More than 99 per cent of the alewives were taken in pound nets. The success of the gill netters catching shad may be attributed to a storm in March which destroyed many pound nets in the lower part of the river and in Chesapeake Bay, thus permitting the shad to ascend to the gill net grounds.

THE SUPREME COURT.

In his speech at Baltimore on Tuesday evening Gov. Roosevelt made this statement:

> After March 4, 1929, the Republican party was in complete control of all branches of the Federal government—the Executive, and the Senate and the House of Representatives—and I might add, for good measure, the Supreme Court as well.

A suggestion, deliberately made, that any political party has been or could be in "control" of the Supreme Court of the United States would be an insult to the court, an insult to the appointing power, an insult to the confirming power, and an insult to the people. No one having a decent respect for the opinion of the people could put forth such a suggestion in real earnest.

As Gov. Roosevelt is a patriotic American, devoted to American institutions, it is impossible to believe that he has deliberately uttered a sentiment so destructive. It can not be that he wishes to convince voters less intelligent than himself that the Supreme Court is controlled by a political party.

For the sake of maintaining respect for the institution in whose hands rest the liberty and life of the citizen, and for his own sake, Gov. Roosevelt should find an opportunity immediately to withdraw the words he has uttered.

INDUSTRY FACING RUIN.

Antiprotectionists who have been advocating lower tariffs, in spite of the new invasion of the American market by goods made in countries off the gold standard, are beginning to run to cover. Some are dropping the issue; others are reversing their position with the explanation that, of course, they do not advise the reduction of duties so as to injure any American industry. The most rabid antiprotectionists are foolishly trying to deny that depreciated currency has had an effect on American imports.

One ardent Democratic organ has revived the report of the Tariff Commission made last winter before the increased flow of depreciated-currency goods had begun. At that time the commission was unable to trace any effect of depreciated currency upon imports. This antiprotectionist organ goes a step further and says that import figures which go beyond the period covered by the commission's report "lend further credence in support of the proposition that foreign currency depreciation has not stimulated our imports from countries off the gold standard, compared with those still on it." Foes of the tariff will excuse this mouthpiece for being six months behind the times, but the public will want the facts.

Deceit is easy in this field because comparisons are always made on the basis of the dollar value of imports. It is obvious that as foreign currency declines the value of foreign goods, expressed in American money, declines also. Consequently, the volume of imported merchandise which competes with American goods may be greatly extended without showing any increase in its total value. The only way in which a fair comparison can be made on the basis of value is to calculate the imports from each country on the par value of its currency.

On this basis Spain, whose currency is depreciated 58 per cent, increased her exports to the United States during the first seven months of 1932 by 65 per cent; Finland by 45 per cent; Egypt, 83 per cent; Brazil, 36 per cent; Mexico, 21 per cent; Japan, 6 per cent, and Portugal by nearly 10 per cent. Minor increases are recorded for Greece and Sweden. All of these countries are off the gold standard.

It is true that some of the countries off the gold standard lost heavily, and for the entire list of major countries using depreciated currency the value of imports fell off 3.4 per cent when calculated on the gold standard basis. But this compares with a loss of 36 per cent for gold standard countries as a whole and with a sharp decline in domestic industry.

Calculated on the basis of physical quantity the advantage of imports from countries off the gold standard is even more striking. The volume of dutiable imports from Norway increased 61 per cent in the first quarter of this year; dutiable imports from Finland, 20 per cent; from Portugal, 183 per cent; Egypt, 29 per cent; New Zealand, 25 per cent; Japan, 4 per cent; Spain, 15 per cent; Brazil, 35 per cent, and Argentina 15 per cent. All these increases represent dutiable goods that come into direct competition with American industries.

Some of the wiseacres in the antiprotectionist ranks try to prove that depreciated currency has had no effect upon American imports because imports from Great Britain have declined since that country left the gold standard. That is a popular half-truth. There has been a decline of 27 per cent in the free imports from Britain, but an increase of nearly 4 per cent in the actual volume of dutiable goods from that country. These goods displace the products of American labor in this critical period.

No one would expect depreciated currency to give the countries using it a better market in the United States for all their goods. The advantages they acquire are concentrated in some industries that are particularly adapted to supplying American needs. In some instances imports competing with American industries have increased several thousand per cent in the last year. Obviously, the Government can not stand by and allow these particular industries to be ruined merely because foreign competition is not destroying every industry. If the Department of Commerce and the Tariff Commission would get busy and make these facts known the public would realize that a demand for tariff reduction is a demand that American industry shall be destroyed.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT'S SON.

From Manila the voice of Col. Theodore Roosevelt was carried to American citizens everywhere yesterday afternoon, urging the reelection of President Hoover. The Governor General of the Philippines sees in long perspective the rich and powerful United States looming above all other nations. He reminds his countrymen of the chaos that prevails throughout the world, with deadly miseries of revolution, hunger, disorder, and robbery of all human rights. He asks American voters if they are right when they believe that their misfortunes are greater than those of other peoples. He hints that they know very little of world conditions, or they would count themselves fortunate in escaping the evils that are suffered in other countries.

Col. Roosevelt holds that President Hoover has warded off the greatest of world evils, and that the program now in effect will restore the United States to sound prosperity. The bitter criticism of President Hoover by the discontented is an echo of the opprobrium that was heaped upon Washington, Lincoln, Cleveland, Roosevelt and Wilson. "Now it is Hoover's turn," remarks Col. Roosevelt. "To my mind the very abuse he is suffering is a testimony of his greatness."

While not accusing his distant cousin, Franklin Roosevelt, of holding all the radical and destructive theories that are put forth in the name of Democracy, Col. Roosevelt makes the homely suggestion that "when you marry you do not merely marry your wife but her family as well." Beware the radicals who flock about the Democratic candidate, is Col. Roosevelt's advice. "Should he be elected the severest pressure will be brought to bear on him to lend himself to these theories. He will be forced to concede or he will be stalemated."

The son of Theodore Roosevelt maintains, in his generation, the ideals of America.

A CHALLENGE TO GENEVA.

No statement from any quarter of the globe could have more influence upon the Geneva disarmament conference than President Hoover's warning that the United States will build a navy "equal to that of the most powerful in the world," unless other nations disarm. Every one knows that the United States is in a position to outstrip any other nation in an armaments race. Other countries are now on notice that a full-sized American Navy will be built unless constructive action is taken at Geneva.

Ever since the war the United States has led the way toward disarmament. European nations, for the most part, have refused to follow. At the London naval conference the American Government sought reduction of world fleets, but had to be content with limitation. Since that time the American Navy has not been built up to the strength allotted to it. Great Britain and Japan both have larger navies than the United States, although by treaty rights this country may build a fleet second to none. In the present unsettled state of the world this condition can not be allowed to continue without jeopardizing national defense.

President Hoover has become the world's most outstanding exponent of disarmament. He has offered a plan whereby arms could be reduced by one-third without disturbing the present relative strength of the nations.

By this proposal he kept the Geneva disarmament conference alive. Now he is trying to rescue the conference from another deadlock.

It is indeed an anomalous situation when the most powerful nation in the world struggles in vain to induce other countries to disarm. But Uncle Sam will not go so far as to give the world an example of disarmament while all other countries remain armed to the teeth. The patience of the American people is strained almost to the breaking point. If the delegates from Washington have to leave the Geneva conference in disgust after another failure, there will be only one alternative—to build and maintain the most powerful navy in the world.

It is still more strange that the United States should have to carry on, almost single-handed, the fight for disarmament when Europe is groaning under the burden of taxation and pleading for cancellation of the debts created in the last war. The American Government has done all in its power to relieve the people of Europe from their staggering load of armaments. If militaristic leaders will not listen to reason, then Uncle Sam can only withdraw from the Geneva farce and build up a navy strong enough to guarantee the American people against foreign aggression in any form.

President Hoover's step in this direction will be applauded by American citizens of both parties, and by millions of distressed people in other lands who are disgusted with the insincere bickerings at Geneva.

THE OIL SUPPLY.

The latest report of the Federal Oil Conservation Board calls attention anew to the definitely limited quantity of the nation's known oil reserves. The discovery of several very productive new fields in recent years has led many persons to believe that unlimited quantities of petroleum exist, sufficient for all possible future needs. The prolific east Texas development, where an orgy of uncontrolled drilling flooded the market until oil was selling at 10 cents a barrel, did much to encourage the belief that subterranean reservoirs contained supplies beyond all powers of consumption.

No one can say with any authority today that new oil fields will not be found, but the overproduction of the last two years has not been conducive to intensive wildcatting, and exploration work will lag while thousands of wells in various fields are pinched down to a mere fraction of capacity under proration regulations. Whatever potential production may be today, however much it may be in excess of present demand, the supply comes from deposits which, once drained, can not be replaced.

According to the consensus of the best informed opinion the oil reserves in the developed fields of the United States today amount to about ten billion barrels. At the present rate of consumption this supply will last only twelve years. There is no assurance that new fields, even if discovered, could be brought in faster than increasing consumption needs. Virtual embargo legislation passed by the last Congress was a blow to conservation of this important national asset. Every recommendation of the Conservation Board should now be enforced, so that there shall be no unnecessary waste of the limited known supply.

FROM AN OLD BULL MOOSE

By W. A. WHITE in the Emporia Gazette.

Our Bull Moose comrades—George Norris, Hiram Johnson, Brookhart and La Follette—have followed the Democratic jackass into the wilderness. They will live to regret it. But they have a right to their opinions. This is a free country. Here is our feeling about this election:

The Republican Progressives who went into the Bull Moose party under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt had one common characteristic. They believed in America, in the courage and the faith of the American people and in the perpetuity of political institutions established and maintained in the American spirit.

To define "political institutions maintained in the American spirit," let us say that it means political control of an economic order which would let any man rise according to his qualities who honestly returns to society a necessary service. This same control of an economic order would also prevent any man sinking below a certain decently high standard of living who was willing to work. This political order should be based upon the ballot box, free speech and free press—majority rule; opposing both communism and fascism with equal vigor.

Obviously upon this broad platform issues change from decade to decade. Today institutions maintained in the American spirit are in danger in the defeat of Herbert Hoover. The tide running against him now is a tide of wrath running against American institutions maintained in the American spirit. There are few votes for Roosevelt; the voters, aside from the partisan Democrats supporting Roosevelt, are voting against the depression. The Hoover fight is a fight against cynicism and despair, against unfaith in the American Government—against that insidious pessimism which always infects a people when they lose faith in their ancient landmarks.

Today President Hoover's battle is not against Roosevelt—it is against the discontent that has come out of these terrible times for which he and the Republican party are in no way responsible. So the issue in this campaign is not to sustain Hoover, but to uphold the President of the United States and the far-sighted group of patriots in both parties, in politics and out of politics, who are trying to maintain America as a going concern under the American spirit.

If Hoover is defeated, if the gold standard slips, if we descend into commercial cataclysm and through panic into financial chaos, we shall have unchecked inflation running wild to support pork barrel legislation. In that day the America that we have maintained for a century and a half under the indomitable American spirit may submerge in dire disaster. Herbert Hoover may be depended upon to resist the shock which threatens our political system and our financial order. The only candidate who will resist the shock is this hard-headed, clear-visioned man who can't be bluffed, cheated nor coaxed when he has taken his stand.

As one Bull Moose, who in his day was proud of his stand and still glories in it, we feel that our job is to forget minor issues in this great crisis.

ARTIFICIAL LARYNX.

Nathan M. Albert, of Westminster, Md., recently underwent an operation in which it was necessary to remove his larynx. A few years ago this would have meant the complete loss of speech, but thanks to the scientists of the Bell laboratories, this no longer need be the case. An artificial larynx makes it possible for Mr. Albert to speak with such clarity and distinctness that, whether talking with a person face to face or over the telephone, his words are understood as easily as if he were using the larynx which nature provided. At the time of the operation, Mr. Albert was just past 69 and since using the artificial larynx he has been able to resume his duties and again is carrying on an active business life.

If It Wasn't for That Ceiling.

POST HASTE

One thing Gov. Roosevelt ought to learn is that the Supreme Court is not a political branch of the Government.

It took the fall of four forts and one cabinet to convince Bolivia that she should arbitrate the Gran Chaco dispute.

Al Smith began a speech with "I've been thinking in my mind——" and Democrats are hoping he won't think out loud any more.

Jouett Shouse's predictions regarding the nominee and the men who would run the Democratic committee do not recommend him as an oracle on election results.

After some of the campaign speeches are off the air the radio companies should have fewer complaints about a little static.

President Hoover gently hints that Uncle Sam has other uses for the money, but if he has to build a big Navy he can spare the cash better than some other nations.

"I may be mistaken, but I think I am advocating Republicanism," said Senator Borah. That is nearer right than he has been before in this campaign.

It would be impossible to explain all the ultimatums on all subjects that young Senator Cutting has gathered up on the plains of New Mexico, if it were not that he is an editor and publisher.

The brilliant idea came to Al Smith to let the Volstead act alone, but just make it nonapplicable to malt liquors. Where would the light-winers come in on this dark beer plot?

The V. F. W. say payment of the bonus would benefit 10,000,000 persons. But would they have the nerve to take it all, when only a fraction of them need help?

The fact that Gov. Roosevelt approves of Senators Norris and Huey Long is more convincing than a straw vote.

A glance at the list of directors of U. S. Steel is rather convincing that they looked over the field pretty thoroughly before placing a $6,000,000 bet on Better Times. PAUL HUDSON.

THE LONG, LONG WATCH.

Joe Scott left his watch with F. A. Hannis, of York, Nebr., to have it repaired. Soon afterward he left for California. That was in 1905, says the Lincoln (Nebr.) Journal.

Scott recently came back to York for the first time since he left. As he rounded a corner and espied Hannis' sign Scott exclaimed to his wife: "By George, I left my watch there to be fixed 27 years ago; I wonder if it's still there!"

Next day he went to Hannis' store, and after exchanging greetings Scott asked about the watch. Hanging in a repair case Hannis found the timepiece. Upon the yellowed tag, hardly discernible, was Scott's name.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

FAULT SEEING.

'Tis strange the faults in him I see,
No great attraction hold for me,
Tempted by them I'd scarcely be.

I wonder since it is so plain
Why he will dice with loss and pain
So trivial a joy to gain.

That which he counts exquisite bliss
To win, and anguish keen to miss,
To me intolerable boredom is.

Ah, well, I have my weakness, too,
And no doubt from his point of view,
He wonders at the things I do.

I think his follies shouldn't be.
He looks my way, but can not see
The follies which appeal to me.

Why Keep Your Family in Rags to Buy Swell Uniforms for the Servants?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN a family accustomed to riches is told that misfortune has left it no more than $100 a month, its members cry in dismay and indignation: "Why, we simply can't live on such a ridiculous income."

But they are mistaken. They can let their servants go. They can give up their cars. They can quit buying luxuries and delicacies. And when their income is reduced to $30 a month, they still can find some kind of shelter and live on fat pork and beans. They will live.

It is ridiculous to say that people can't live on this or that. They can live on what they have, be it much or little. Millions of them are proving it.

If this is true of people, isn't it equally true of their government?

You are told by your representatives that the various branches of government can not operate on a smaller income than they now have.

That is silly. They haven't tried to operate on less. They are still thinking and spending in terms of 1929.

There isn't a single government expense that can't be reduced.

Would any branch of government quit functioning if its income were cut in half? You know it would not.

Government now spends lavishly because money and credit are easy to get. It could operate at one-tenth of the present cost if hard necessity required it.

The salary of every public servant could be cut in half. Every dead-head could be pried from the public pay roll. Every government service, from battleships to rural free delivery, could be curtailed or stopped.

Do you think such drastic measures unnecessary? How else can taxpayers be saved?

Do you know that one-fourth of all we earn now goes to pay the costs of government? Do you know that all the money in America isn't half enough to pay the tax bill for one year?

You can't cure a patient until you remove the cause of his affliction. You can't restore business until you remove the curse that throttles it.

Take your choice. You can have prosperity again or you can have a continuation of ruinous taxation. But you can't have both.

Your car may seem a necessity. But if you must quit running the car or quit buying bread for your family, it is time to swallow your pride and walk.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Al Smith's Speech.

New York Evening Post.

Former Gov. Smith spoke Monday night at Newark from a full heart. Evidently he poured forth the hurt and the resentment that have been his ever since the bigotry that defeated him in the presidential campaign of 1928. It is impossible to blame him for having these feelings. But it is difficult to forgive him for dragging them into a campaign that has so far been singularly free of them. Especially hard is it to forgive his venomous attack upon Col. Donovan. In effect he did to Donovan just what he accused the Republicans of doing to himself. It is strange how far wrong a strong emotion, choked down and unexpressed, can eventually lead even so splendid a man as Alfred E. Smith. For his own sake and for the sake of his country, we regret his Newark speech more than we can say. And we doubt extremely that Roosevelt and Garner will benefit by it.

Roosevelt's Fiscal Policy.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Gov. Roosevelt gave evidence that he is approaching political problems realistically when at Pittsburgh he said economy is one of the most important issues of the campaign. By devoting one of his major speeches wholly to fiscal matters he made plain that he has given thought to the cost of government.

The Democratic nominee has two principal aims in fiscal affairs. One is to balance the budget in a final sense of the term. The other is to accomplish this balancing through economies, rather than higher taxes. He makes one exception to this rule by the assertion that if the resources of the Federal Government are needed to prevent starvation anywhere in the country he would be willing to levy new taxes for that purpose.

Another Honest Man.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Now here comes Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, who frankly says, speaking of the depression: "It is too great for me." Of course, that does not mean that Mr. Norman has surrendered. "Britons never will be slaves." But it does mean that Mr. Norman is honest. And he is not the only honest man on the planet, either. There is one other. Prof. Taussig, of Harvard, who probably knows as much about the tariff as any one and, if you should ask us, writes more understandingly about it than any one else—Prof. Taussig does not know when, why or how this depression is going to end. And wouldn't it cheer us all up a bit if Mr. Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt and Norman Thomas would get together and issue a joint statement to the effect that the thing is too much for them, too; that they don't know the way out, but are hoping and praying like fury they'll find it?

Presidents and Budget Makers.

Christian Science Monitor.

In his Pittsburgh speech Gov. Roosevelt disclaimed the role of prophet. Yet he implied that if he were elected he would keep the Federal budget in balance. But after his seven and a half years of service in Washington, Mr. Roosevelt should know that neither the loyalty of a Cabinet nor the most Spartan self-denial by an administration can of itself keep any Federal budget in balance. For neither holds the purse strings. Under the American form of government the function of appropriation is vested in the House of Representatives. And all the best laid plans of President and Cabinet can be sent glimmering by an excess of spending zeal on the part of a few congressmen able to carry their colleagues with them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Resents Gov. Roosevelt's Charge That United States Supreme Court Is Controlled by Republican Party.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am sure that every patriotic citizen and interested student of government must be indignant over the amazing statement made by Gov. Roosevelt in regard to the Supreme Court in the course of his radio address at Baltimore. While it is true that the admirers of a real and robust statemanship may have found much with which to take exception in the political utterances of the Governor in his recent "swing around the circle," yet in many ways it seems that his statement that the Republican party is in control of the Supreme Court, one of the most august of American tribunals, marks a new low level in the annals of American politics.

In the early days of the Republic many violent attacks were directed against the court, and often at the Justices, by those who sincerely, if mistakenly, believed that the court was conspiring to overturn the prerogatives of the States and create an autocratic power in Washington of which the court would be a dominant organ. The wisdom of the decisions handed down at this period, decisions which were arrived at by judicial methods, and which have stood the onslaughts of time, adequately testify now how ill-founded were the misdirected attacks.

Throughout the course of American history, the one organ of government whose reputation has remained absolutely unsullied and which grows in power and influence year after year, is the Supreme Court.

The statement of the Governor admits of but one interpretation, and that is that the Justices are amenable to party interests and party discipline. To those who are familiar with the methods by which the decisions of the court are arrived at and the high honor and character of the Supreme Court Justices, the statement is not only absurd, but also partakes of the nature of an unjust, a reprehensible, and vicious slander.

The statement of the Governor is a direct reflection upon the character and integrity of the Justices of the Supreme Court. Certainly any man whose mind is so revealed as was Gov. Roosevelt's, and who is seeking votes by such statements, which naturally tend to undermine confidence in all processes of law, is unworthy to fill the high office of President of the United States.

ARTHUR REANEY MURPHY.

Roosevelt Not Supported by Democrats of Congress on His Tariff Promises.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An excerpt from "Facts," a booklet issued by the women's division of the Republican National Committee:

"The Hawley-Smoot act was a limited revision of the tariff. The act of 1922 included 2,300 items. Of course, 235 rates were decreased in the Hawley-Smoot act (of 1930) and 890 rates were increased, leaving 2,170 items unchanged.

"The Hawley-Smoot act was placed on the statute books only with the assistance of Democratic votes in the Senate.

"After the tariff bill had been perfected Senate Democrats lined up almost solidly in opposition to a motion by one of their own party to strike from the bill all rate increases except those on agricultural products.

"Democratic senators cast 1,010 votes in favor of increasing rates or against decreasing rates; every Democratic senator voted in favor of increasing duties on some commodity, and every Democratic senator except one voted against proposed decreases in rates."

And Congressman Rainey, from Illinois, Democratic leader in the House, said only last winter, "Lower this tariff drastically? You (Republicans) will not do it and we (Democrats) do not dare to do it, with conditions as they are. We do not want this market flooded with products of cheap labor in other countries."

Now what becomes of Mr. Roosevelt's "new deal" in tariffs? Democratic leaders will not support him, if their past record is to be taken seriously.

What rates does Mr. Roosevelt propose to reduce? He is no more specific on the tariff—even less, in fact—than on the "bonus." A HOOSIER.

Admirer of Gov. Roosevelt Denies That He Made Charge Against Supreme Court.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The statement that Gov. Roosevelt charged that the United States Supreme Court is controlled by a political party must be false. I read his Baltimore speech and it does not contain such a charge. Gov. Roosevelt could not make such a charge. He is too patriotic to tear down the people's faith in the Supreme Court. Somebody is lying about Gov. Roosevelt.

G. A., DEMOCRAT.

Richmond Man Puzzled About Gov. Roosevelt's Reference to United States Supreme Court.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heard Gov. Roosevelt say in his speech at Baltimore that the Republican party has controlled the United States Supreme Court since 1929. I heard him distinctly over the radio. My friends who did not hear him say that I am lying. Has he taken back what he said? J. T. PHILLIPS.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

HAVERHILL FEVER.

THERE is a form of arthritis that has all the earmarks of an epidemic disease. It acts very much like acute articular rheumatism, or rheumatic fever, but there are other characteristics that make it certain the disease in question is not the old-fashioned acute rheumatism.

For instance, it is reasonably certain that acute rheumatism is a bacterial disease running a course somewhat similar to that of other acute bacterial diseases, and while it occasionally appears to be catching, prevailing unduly in certain households and in certain other social groups and seemingly passed on from one person to another it does not as a rule meet the requirements of an infective disease. The person afflicted usually appears to catch it from himself. There is a focus of infection, but generally it is somewhere in the body of the person involved. The bacteria seems to launch in this focus, and from time to time to travel out and set up trouble in some joint or the body or in the heart.

The disorder now being considered sweeps over a community like an epidemic of scarlet fever. In the epidemic which prevailed at Haverhill, Mass., and which gave the disease the name Haverhill fever, there was some evidence that the disease was spread by milk. There were nearly 50 cases in that epidemic and milk appeared to be the commodity used in common by those who developed cases of Haverhill fever. The proof that this form of rheumatic fever is so spread is far from conclusive.

In the disease they called Haverhill fever the outstanding symptoms were swelling of one or more joints with pain, tenderness, and heat in the joint; a fairly high range of fever with sour sweating; concentrated, highly acid urine; a skin eruption having pretty much the same appearance in the different cases, and some patches of purpura in the skin. Futhermore, the distribution of the cases in families and in neighborhoods was that of an epidemic disease.

If a physician keeps a close record of several hundred cases of ordinary acute rheumatic fever, he will find some that meet all these specifications. All of them will have one or more swollen, red, tender, and sore joints. All will run fever with the other constitutional symptoms noted. In a few of the cases his records will show that he was able to find some patches of purpura, provided he inspected the skin for them as a matter of routine. Some will have shown some skin eruption.

If the physician is one who has experience in tracing epidemiological relations, some cases will be recorded as having given some proof of infectivity.

This Haverhill fever may be nothing more than acute rheumatic fever behaving as that disease did a century or more ago—rheumatic fever a little off calendar

ACIDITY.

J. K. writes: Will you please send me a list of the foods you consider cause acidity and which should be avoided by those troubled with acidity?

REPLY.

I presume you refer to that form of so-called acidosis in grown people in which there is a reduction of body alkali due to eating foods that are over-rich in acid ash.

Among the foods which are rich in acid ash and are, therefore to be eaten in moderation by such a sufferer are cereals, breads, meats and eggs.

Those foods which tend in the other direction are vegetables and fruits. Milk is about midway

There are other kinds of acidity. Those who are subject to one of these other kinds should avoid fats and greases

THISTLES AND RAGWEED.

J. W. K. writes: A recent news story told how thistles are to be done away with to save the soil, while laws are silent as to killing ragweeds that millions suffer from in the hay fever season. Why not let soil rest until ragweeds are killed off? Every newspaper in the State might become useful by printing your statement touching hay fever, thistles, and ragweeds. Keep on with the arguments for the health of millions.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SCORPIO."

IF October 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Influences will hold away on October 28 that will tend to bring about a general speeding up of all activities. This day is one on which to remember the old adage that "haste makes waste." Remember that there are other days coming and don't seek to accomplish things with a rush. This seems a good rule to follow in business, social and love affairs. Be on your guard against casual acquaintances made this day.

The child born on this October 28 will have better than the average mentality, but will probably be mentally lazy. He will not take great interest in his school work. In all probability he will develop some child-like hobby and will devote a great deal of time and thought to that. Assuming that such hobby is along some worth-while line, it may well lead him into his life's work.

Born on October 28 you are among those fortunate people who in the course of a lifetime will make a great deal of money. Your wisdom is at its height when it comes to the making of money; unfortunately, you do not know how to spend it. You are much inclined to splurge, to make a big show, and are more than satisfied to have some one pat you on the shoulder and say, "My, what a prince of a fellow!" You are socially ambitious and make it a point at any gathering to meet and be seen with the so-called "best people."

You probably have many friends, for yours is a happy and cheerful disposition. You take life lightly, you don't worry, and if things look bad, and gloomy today you are confident that there will be an upward swing tomorrow. For you, there usually is.

You derive great pleasure from your home, your family and from the few friends that you accept as intimates. No doubt you have one or more hobbies, possibly of an unusual sort. You are a good husband or wife, a kindly parent and an amiable friend and companion.

Successful people born on October 28:

Horace Smith, manufacturer.
Robert Treat Paine, banker and journalist.
Homer D. Martin, artist.
Anna E. Dickinson, lecturer.
Moses Ezekiel, sculptor.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

BEEF CROQUETTES.
(Department of Agriculture.)

2 cups ground lean cooked beef
1 cup mashed potato
3 tablespoons gravy or stock
1 tablespoon onion juice
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon butter
Tabasco sauce, as desired
Salt
Pepper
Dry grated sifted bread crumbs
1 egg beaten up with 1 tablespoon water

Fat for deep frying.

Cook the parsley in the butter and mix with the meat, potato, gravy and other seasonings thoroughly. Mold into croquette shapes. Dip into the egg mixture, roll in the bread crumbs and let stand an hour or longer to dry the coating. Heat the fat in a deep vessel to 350 degrees F. or until a cube of bread browns in 40 seconds. Place two or three croquettes at a time in a frying basket and lower slowly into the hot fat for two minutes or until they are a golden brown. Remove the croquettes and drain on a sheet of paper. Serve hot with parsley garnish and tomato sauce.

To make softer croquettes, omit the mashed potato, and either increase the quantity of gravy to three-fourths cup or use three-fourths cup of white sauce. To prepare gravy or white sauce thick enough to act as a binder for a croquette mixture, blend 2 tablespoons flour with 1 tablespoon butter, add three-fourths cup meat stock or milk, and cook in a double boiler, stirring until smooth. Mix the gravy or sauce with the meat and seasonings.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THIS is the season of the year when women become back-conscious. The summer season has left its mark in "V's" or "U's." The skin is tanned or freckled within these areas. Very often, women who do a lot of swimming and have several bathing suits of different cut, have as many semicircles of suntan in varying shades outlining the various necklines of these suits. And if the evening gown line falls within or below these circles, 'tis a sad sight indeed.

Tan is quite becoming to some, particularly with the white and off white satin gowns. But it must be an even tone of tan. The circles mentioned, must be bleached until all is one blended shade. Likewise if alabaster whiteness is desired, the deeper tones of tan should be bleached more frequently than the rest of the skin.

Mild Bleach First.

It is a grave mistake to be too ambitious and use a very strong bleach to begin with. Start with a mild bleach. Better to use such a preparation more frequently than to use a strong, skin-destroying bleach occasionally. Peroxide and rosewater, half and half, is a good bleach. The buttermilk and cornmeal mask is excellent. And there are any number of others. My freckle bulletin gives many recipes for bleaches that can be made at home and these are equally good for freckles, discolorations, suntan and for face as well as neck, back, shoulders, arms. It is a wise plan to treat the back once or twice a week to a complete treatment, such as you would give your face, cleansing it, bleaching, then nourishing and last toning with a good skin tonic and ice rub.

Blackheads and Eruptions.

Very often there is excessive oiliness centered locally at the back between the shoulder blades and down toward the waist. Excessive perspiration too. Dresses and blouses are ruined. Blackheads and eruptions form. No matter how beautiful a woman's complexion, if a low-cut evening gown reveals a mass of blackheads or pimples on her back, the picture lacks loveliness.

Friction.

The best treatment for all these conditions is friction to stimulate the circulation. Use a long handled bath brush and get at the entire back. Or ask mother or sister to do the scrubbing act for you. Then rinse thoroughly. Then let the shower or spray play on your back, first warm, then gradually colder. Then rub shoe-shine fashion with a large, fluffy turkish towel. Twice a week follow with a little warm olive oil and squeeze out any blackheads that seem to yield easily. Dry. Pat with alcohol or skin tonic to close the pores. Over the eruptions use a good acne cream or lotion. And, of course, be sure that your diet is right, elimination regular, water intake plentiful. When you make-up your face for evening, use the same powder base on the neck (preferably a finishing lotion) and pat and smooth over entire back.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

WHAT do you think of the new hats, then? Why, you are entitled to an opinion as well as I, my dear. And are you wearing them, and do you like them?

Personally, I do, really. And I am delighted to see chic hats coming back into style, hats of real elegance, such as I always seem to think a lovely lady's hat should be.

Feathers and velvet ribbon are perhaps the most popular trimming for the winter. Grebe feathers are soft and flattering, and a Parisian modiste has an adorable little toque trimmed with a flat bow of white grebe edged in brown—and the bow is repeated in a chic little muff. And this toque, my dear, is pork pie to the limit—and must be worn squarely on the forehead, resting on the eyebrows!

* * * *

Mister Turtle costs 10 to 20 cents to make, takes an hour, and is more fun than a barrel of monkeys! He's a toy and a pillow for the nursery, or a door stop for his den or studio, and oh, just everything. You can make all the Mister Turtles you want after you have sent a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make him. And will you be glad of this idea for Christmas gifts for the kiddies! And is it a positive inspiration for the man-who-has-everything that you must remember—he hasn't a Mister Turtle, I'll tell you! Hurry!

* * * *

Varnished satin now! Yes, actually varnished to a mirror-like surface, and worn as a short jacket to make an evening tailleur out of a dinner dress for fall and winter. Fitting as snugly as an old-fashioned basque, my dear, for basque it is save for the additional long, pointed ends in front which cross and swath the waist and tie in the center back.

* * * *

Has it occurred to you that the wider upper arm sleeve in the winter coats is there for a reason? Yes, the reason is to accommodate the new puffed sleeves, for if you have even one in your wardrobe, trouble begins when you put on your coat!

And the tunic dress for both morning and afternoon wear is here to stay, my dear. Its becomingness to certain figures is simply undeniable.

* * * *

And now full-length woolen evening coats! Good tailoring is at its height in this type of coat, and newness is certainly its forte—though a well-tailored, semifitting woolen coat on princess lines, as these are, were seen a few centuries ago, we do admit.

And if silhouettes are severe and lines seem simple it does not imply a lack of elegance, because materials are marvelously beautiful!

* * * *

Have I room to thank you all for your letters? All are welcome!

* * * *

Au revoir.

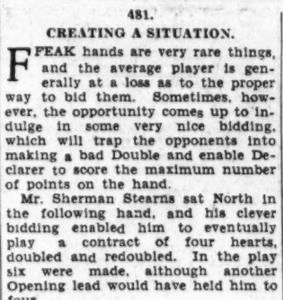
CREATING A SITUATION.

FREAK hands are very rare things, and the average player is generally at a loss as to the proper way to bid them. Sometimes, however, the opportunity comes up to indulge in some very nice bidding, which will trap the opponents into making a bad Double and enable Declarer to score the maximum number of points on the hand.

Mr. Sherman Stearns sat North in the following hand, and his clever bidding enabled him to eventually play a contract of four hearts, doubled and redoubled. In the play six were made, although another Opening lead would have held him to four.

East—Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

Mr. Sherman Stearns.



The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♠(1)	Dbl.(2)	Redbl.(3)
Pass	Pass	2♡(4)	2♠(5)
Pass	Pass	3♡(6)	3♠(7)
Pass	Pass(8)	4♡(9)	Pass
Pass	Dbl.(10)	Redbl.(11)	Pass
Pass	Pass(12)

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

1—A shaded suit—but the hand contains 2½ honor-tricks and partner may have been passing a fairly good hand.
2—First step in the campaign of deception.
3—Justified by the support in spades and by the fact that he has already passed.
4—Feeling certain that East and West will continue bidding.
5—Three clubs might have been better here, as the Redouble had probably shown support for spades.
6—A rather dangerous bid, as all may conceivably pass.
7—East obliges.
8—West might have disconcerted North at this point if he had decided to bid four spades. However, he has opened the bidding with the intention of trying for a part-score, and is still determined not to take a set if he can avoid it.
9—North finally makes the bid he has been planning during the whole game.
10—Unquestionably a very poor Double, but West feels that South must hold a bust and, with West's strong hand, that the contract can be defeated.
11—Also a little unsafe, as the opponents may very well have a game in spades. A good gamble, however, and one which earned great rewards.
12—Feeling that North is trying to drive him back to four spades.

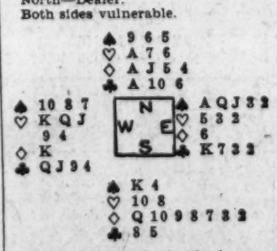
In the play the spade King was opened and Mr. Stearns discarded two diamonds on the Ace and Queen. After taking the heart finesse he claimed every trick but one, conceding the Ace of diamonds. The hand can not be defeated by any defense, but a club Opening would hold it to four, as the Declarer would not be able to get in the Dummy to take his diamond discards or to take the heart finesse.

The hand is an interesting example of applied psychology, and probably North would not have dared to attempt these tactics if he had not known the general make-up of his opponents' hands.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

THE beauty of this exquisitely lovely model is that it can be carried out in contrasts of fabrics, also contrasts in color, and dull and shiny surfaces of materials may be worked to advantage.

The original used exclusive black half-shiny crinkly crepe satin with the reverse side which appears like a dull crinkly crepe silk.

Another delightful scheme is black rough crepe silk with black cire satin crepe.

Tomato-red rough crepe with black crepe bodice section and sleeve buttons is young and smart.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

AUTUMNAL ANTICLIMAXES.

I.

THE wooded hills are all ablaze
With hues that dazzle and delight—
Each tree is like a tongue of flame—
Each branch a mass of color bright;
This is the season of the year
When nature gives her finest show—
Why must we fret at such a time
About the way elections go?

II.

Each mountain is a crimson splash
With daubs of yellow here and there;
Bandana-like is every slope
As golden autumn fills the air.
The country's like a gypsy bride,
Her cheeks aglow with crimson wine—
And were those campaign speakers squelched
The autumn would be very fine.

III.

The brook's reflections are a mass
Of colors that amaze the eye;
Each pool a glass of wizardry
To catch the autumn passing by;
There is a beauty in the land
That moves the people like a prayer,
Or would, but for the fact there are
So many politicians there!

IV.

The open fields are all aglow,
The golf links never seemed so grand,
Each dooryard breathes a litany
That any one can understand;
Each hill, each valley and each lane
Is brilliant with a master's touch—
Comparatively, Herb and Frank
Are (strictly speaking) nothing much!

V.

Ten billion leaves, and maybe more
(Some day I'll count 'em, one by one),
Go waltzing, skipping, 'cross the field
As in a carnival of fun;
There is such beauty all about,
From distant peak to farmyard gate,
I'm strangely cold when gazing at
A presidential candidate!

THIS HUSTLING CAMPAIGN.

AL SMITH, in a 10,000-word Newark speech for the Democratic party, mentioned Roosevelt and Garner only in the last three words of his final sentence. That's what we call a refusal to be rushed.

AS THE HAPPY WARRIOR MIGHT SAY.

I'm for Frank and John—
With their aims I've reckoned—
And I'll boost 'em both—
In the last split second!

CHEERING NEWS.

Mister, could you spare a feller a dime?

What for?

So I could go to a picture house and listen to a news reel speaker tell me the slump is over.

SO THIS IS BRAINWORK.

The slowest thinking seems to be done at great universities. Consider the situation with regard to football this season. The bowls and stadia are less than half filled at the better games, yet the athletic managements continue to charge $4 or more per seat, keeping out thousands who would attend for a more reasonable charge.

And then there's the refreshment stand angle. With from 20,000 to 40,000 fans trying to get a sandwich and cup of coffee between the halves, our major colleges limit the equipment to one or two Boy Scout tents!

By ROBERT D. HEINL

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S address in Indianapolis will be heard by voters all over the country through a Nation-wide network (WRC, 8:30 p. m.).

Oscar Shumsky, 15-year-old violin genius, will be the soloist featured with Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra during the broadcast direct from the Academy of Music in Philadelphia (WJSV, 2:30-4 p. m.). Playing the world premiere of his own cadenza to the Brahms "Violin Concerto in D," Shumsky will have the distinction of being the youngest soloist to be engaged with the Philadelphia Orchestra. Stokowski has selected the prelude to Wagner's "Lohengrin," Tschaikowsky's "Symphony No. 5 in E Minor" and another premiere, "Three Units," the most recent work of Ernest Berronokst, young American composer.

His excellency, Dr. Ferdinand Veverka, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from Czechoslovakia to the United States, will speak over WJSV and a national network at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon in commemoration of the fifteenth anniversary of his country's independence.

Ted di Corsia as President Hoover and William Adams in the role of Gov. Roosevelt will engage in a debate over controversial campaign issues during the "March of Time" (WJSV, 8:30 p. m.).

IF you think you have tuned in a riot when turning to WJSV at 7 o'clock these mornings, it is Elder Michaux, colored evangelist, warming up. In the old days, Michaux used to put on a pretty good show, but the present series is too obviously a staged performance—too long drawn out and much too noisy.

Leo O'Rourke, Irish tenor, absent from the microphone for about a year, will return to the air today (WRC, 12:15 p. m.) during "On Wings of Song."

The concert which the Northeastern Ohio District High School Orchestra will present before the 15,000 school teachers assembled in Cleveland for their annual convention will be on WRC at 9 o'clock this morning.

DUMPING OF STEEL DENIED AT HEARING

Importers in Countercharge Saying U. S. Sells for Less in Europe.

(Associated Press.)

Importers yesterday told customs officials they had not been bringing steel into the United States and selling it for less than in the country where it was manufactured.

Furthermore, they said domestic producers who made charges to that effect at a hearing last week either intentionally were trying to be misleading or were uninformed as to the facts. George E. Dix, of the Steel Union Co., of New York, a branch of the Vereingte Stahlwerk of Germany, was one of the importers who testified to that effect.

Dix said the domestic producers' hands were not clean, that American industry "dumped" its excess steel abroad at prices lower than those received at home. In some instances, he said, the foreign price on American steel is $10 a ton less than in the United States.

"Fraud Bonds" Protested.

Importers also said that when they brought steel channels and wire netting in from Germany, they had to put up "fraud bonds" instead of "anti-dumping" bonds. This, they continued, was done to "put the importer out of business."

They said New York officials had informed them that within a few days they would have to supply bonds requiring security to 150 per cent of the value of the imports. Bonding companies, the importers asserted, have declined to write such bonds except on the cash or Government bond security.

Suspicions Are Rife.

B. Hoeragen of the Seamless Tube and Steel Company, of New York, was another witness for the importers. He said importers today are in the same position as were persons suspected of witchcraft in early colonial times.

Then, he said, a suspicion of having "an evil eye" would bring arrest on allegations of witchcraft. Today, he contended, any one of 50 customs appraisers could file a charge of suspected dumping against any commodity that would require the posting of a bond large enough to "ruin" the business of the importer.

H. M. Wallace, of New York, counsel for the importers, said the bond New York customs officials intend to ask is not legal or just.

"It is designed to put the importer out of business," he said.

Brown and Burke Delay Police Conduct Parley

Unexpected press of current business yesterday caused postponement of a scheduled conference between Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown and Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of the Detective Bureau, at which it had been planned to discuss a program of operations mapped out by the detective chief.

The discussion will be held today, Inspector Brown said last night. Welding of the Crime Prevention Bureau into the Detective Bureau is expected to form one of the major subjects of the conference.

Crusader Says Dry Law Costs D. C. $8,000,000

Prohibition has cost the people of the District of Columbia at least $8,000,000, John F. Dryden, executive commander of the Crusaders, anti-prohibition organization, declared yesterday in a public statement.

"In 1916, when prohibition was enacted for the District, there were 326 licensed saloons in Washington," he said. "Each of these establishments paid a license fee of $1,500 a year, or a total of $489,000 annually. These licensed and regulated saloons," he continued, "have been replaced by 1,000 or more speakeasies, which do not pay one cent in taxes."

Testimonial Luncheon To Be Given Brown

A testimonial luncheon to Maj. Ernest W. Brown, newly appointed police superintendent, will be tendered by the Washington Chamber of Commerce in the Mayflower Hotel next Tuesday at 12:15 p. m., it was announced yesterday.

District Commissioners and other officials of the municipal government are expected to attend the luncheon. Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the chamber, has requested members to make early reservations for the luncheon.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

SOME time, no doubt, some motion picture star will come East on vacation between assignments and really make it a vacation by dodging interviewers and all of the other planned "relaxations" with which the celluloid celebrity always is pestered from the moment he sets foot upon the station ramp, arriving, until he shakes its dust from his heels, departing.

EDW. G. ROBINSON

When this heroic specimen of a breed peculiarly susceptible to the flattery of solicitous attention comes along, it is going to be just too bad for us long - distance screen and stage commentators.

For instance, had Edward G. Robinson pursued a policy half as hard-bered as most of the roles he portrays before the cameras and microphones when he arrived in New York recently—or comparatively so—between pictures, we probably would never have known that he still entertains a persistent and fervent yen for the stage, from which he sprang.

Robinson makes it plain that he does not expect to return to the boards for quite some time, but admits, in almost the same breath, that that does not mean he is tried of the footlights or has deserted them permanently. After all, the stage was his first love; he made his first success there—after stock experience here in Washington and elsewhere—in such plays as "The Racket," "Kibitzer," "The Goat Song" and "Juarez and Maximilian," and all that is hard to forget. Some day he wants to be on Broadway again. He has similarly emphatic ideas about his work in the films.

"Of course I want to get away from gangster parts," says he, "other 'tough' ones, too; have wanted to for a long time. Once I thought I had done it when I became a hard-boiled managing editor. Then they gave me a hatchet in place of a gat, a monkey wrench, for murder, in place of the hatchet, and now a hook. What's a fellow to do? They seem to have me pegged to stay mean."

This, of course, is the most flagrant sort of an anomaly, this "staying mean" business on the part of Edward G. Robinson, for Eddie Robinson, as anyone who knows him will tell you, is the most genial soul in the world. He was sinister, in a genial sort of way, in "Little Caesar," "Smart Money" and even in "The Hatchet Man," but none of these performances, we are led to believe, can touch his vengeful (and genial) impersonation of the pivotal character in "Tiger Shark," opening today at the Metropolitan.

It is said that one of the largest motion picture units ever sent on location visited San Diego, Calif., when First National sent the troupe of players, headed by Mr. Robinson, and a technical crew out to make "Tiger Shark," a drama of the tuna fisheries, cleaneries and canneries. In addition to the various members of the acting group, the crews of two tuna boats, electricians, sound men, property men, transportation experts and still cameramen were included in the outfit.

San Diego was selected because of the picturesque aspects of the fishing industry to be found in that Southern California city and nowhere else on the Pacific Coast. The action of the picture is divided among the fishermen's colony, the wharves and the canneries, not to mention the Pacific waters some hundreds of miles off the California coast where the fishing boats hunt schools of tuna the year 'round and where some of the most engrossing episodes of the story occur.

This, obviously is a picture First National expects to cash in on to the tuna millions!

The projected appearance in person of Miss Dorothy Jordan at Loew's Fox Theater is remindful, more or less, of that old "off again, on again, gone again, Finnegan" gag, except that it would require the inverse to be true in the present instance. Miss Jordan, in a manner of speaking, is off again, on again, coming again to F street.

Which is to say that having been penciled in and erasured out until it began to get just a little monotonous, Miss Jordan is now booked with some promise of permanency for a week from today. November 4, as the outstanding personality of a vaudeville bill bristling with "names."

In addition to Miss Jordan, the Funnyboners, frequently seen in short-reel screen subjects; Ann Pennington and Charles Judels and the Roxy Gang will be among those present to lend support to Clive Brook's shadow in the role of "Sherlock Holmes" on the screen.

Of course you know by now that Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees are to be at Wardman Park November 7 and 8, which is by way of being the Monday before the balloting and election day itself. Whatta combination!

And speaking of Wardman, of course we could go down to the composing room and dig through the Friday rack for the leftover item crowded out of yesterday's column, to the effect that Mr. and Mrs. Bing Crosby were in town, having pastimed the afternoon before at Laurel, where Hughie Miller, the demon photographer, ferreted them out and snapped some pretty pictures that will be rotoed in due course, except that it seems much more diverting to reproduce an item that comes to hand almost contemporaneously from the usually authentic Loew publicity department, to wit:

"Bing Crosby, now that he's finished his work with Stuart Erwin, Leila Hyams and a group of radio favorites in 'The Big Broadcast,' now showing at Loew's Palace, is sailing the Mexican seas with Nick Stuart, trailing down swordfish and nabbing 'em when, and if, he finds 'em."

Well, well, Mr. Crosby, how you do move about!

Then, too, it comes to light through a surreptitious reading of Mrs. Phil Lampkin's private correspondence from her brother on the West Coast that Archie Leach—Cary Grant to you, fan—who used to hand-paint cravats for a dollar a throw down in Greenwich Village, now owns the swankiest haberdashery on Hollywood Boulevard in the well known fillum capital of the same name. Which just goes to show something or other, I forget precisely what.

On Monday evening, October 31, "Maedchen in Uniform," the much discussed German film, will be given its first showing outside of New York in the Auditorium Theater in Baltimore, according to a cordial note of invitation to attend the premiere performance from Manager Leonard B. McLaughlin, on behalf of John Krimsky and Gifford Cochran. The Messrs. Krimsky and Cochran, who are presenting "Maedchen" in New York at the Criterion Theater, where it has been breaking all attendance records since its premiere six weeks ago, have arranged for an exclusive showing of the famous film in the Monumental City and will not present it elsewhere in this vicinity this year. More later.

Reverting momentarily to "The Big Broadcast," among the other radio announcers pictured in the studio screens will be recognized Ralph Robertson, former Washingtonian, a son of Mrs. Cecelia Reynolds Robertson, who, for years, under the affectionate pen name of "Aunt Anna," was editor of the Junior Post section of The Washington Post.

And how are you getting on with your apple-bobbing, against the coming of Monday night?

Democrats Assign Speakers.

The campaign committee of the young Democratic Club of Washington, which has been furnishing speakers to the nearby sections in Virginia and West Virginia, yesterday sent Miss Louise Falligant, Winfield S. MacGill and Francis B. Taylor, jr., to Berkeley Springs, W. Va., where they spoke at a county rally last night in the interests of the Democratic party.

G. W. PITS TRICKS AGAINST IOWA'S BRAWN TONIGHT

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

HOLY CROSS' coaches will get another look at Charley McVean tomorrow afternoon. They met him once four years ago, when he spent two days as a candidate for the Holy Cross varsity, but they didn't care to prolong the acquaintance. Too light, they said, when they saw McVean's 145 pounds encased in football toggery.

McVean required only 48 hours to realize that he was about as important on the Holy Cross squad as a field goal in a 56-0 game. He hied himself back to Washington, enrolled at Catholic University, and began to plot his revenge. As a sophomore at C. U. last year he made his letter. He wasn't a great football player, but he could punt.

Holy Cross' coaches are destined to get a 60-minute look at McVean tomorrow. He's the regular quarter back for C. U. this season. He punts for the varsity now, but he also runs and passes the ball. He has ended Coach Bergman's quarter back worries. McVean needs no pep talk to fire his play against Holy Cross. He'll be playing for C. U. and Charley McVean. If, prechance, C. U. wins, sweet will be the victory to Charley McVean.

Coach Solem Talks of Big Ten Football.

Mr. Ossie Solem, head coach of the Iowa Hawkeyes, who will provide the opposition for George Washington under the arc lights at Griffith Stadium tonight, believes that football in the Big Ten is on a level if not superior to football in any other section of the country.

That was the opinion he expressed last night over the air when interviewed by this department from WOL, and it was patent to me that Mr. Solem is qualified to know whereof he speaks.

"For seven years while I was coach at Drake University, I was on the outside, looking in, at Big Ten football," said Mr. Solem, "and I saw plenty. My Drake teams always met one or two of the Big Ten contenders and as a result when I assumed charge of Iowa this year I carried into my new job a great deal of respect for Big Ten football.

"I am one of those who think that, taken as a group, Big Ten teams concede nothing to any other section in point of caliber or efficiency. Every team in the Big Ten may not be an outstanding team, but I can not remember the year when the conference didn't develop at least one or two outstanding elevens. You can almost count on at least one super team each year. The competition is so stiff that the team that finally does land on top is bound to be a great football team."

One Vote for Navy Against Penn.

In an adjoining column this department predicts a victory by Navy over Penn tomorrow at Franklin Field. Perhaps I am flying into the very face of better judgment, for past performances of the two teams hardly bear me out, but Navy gets my vote without reservations.

Penn has a 14-7 victory over Dartmouth to recommend it, and is yet unbeaten in four games while Navy, after taking it on the chin from William and Mary, 6-0, and Ohio University, 14-0, was held to a scoreless tie by Princeton. But in the zeros of the Princeton score are hidden the fact that Navy outplayed the Tigers from start to finish.

Nine fumbles figured in Navy's defeat by Ohio University. Against the Tigers the Navy fumbled five times. Bill Clark, a new quarter back, will be at the helm of the Midshipmen. I look for the Quakers a merry afternoon and leave Franklin Field victorious.

Steele Slams Daviscourt To Defeat

Californian Winner of Rough Match in 16 Minutes.

Dusek Beats McKay; Garibaldi - Vassell Battle to Draw.

TWENTY already-scrambled ears were misshapen a bit more last night as ten rasslers presented themselves in a five-act playette at the Washington Auditorium before close to 3,000 spectators, who gobbled up the drama dispensed with great gusto.

Faced with making an early train, Ray Steele, one of the best matmen ever developed, romped over Dick Daviscourt in sixteen minutes in the feature bout, outroughing the rough Californian and finally sending the 220-pound mass of protoplasm to the mat with a thunderous crash. Steele won as he pleased, konking Daviscourt with elbow jabs and frequently tying him in knots. Many of Daviscourt's most celebrated holds—notably his sock on the nose holt—slipped harmlessly off the leathery hide of Jim Londos' favorite cotillion partner.

Two of the preliminaries stole much of the main match's thunder. In the feature of these, Rudy Dusek, after being almost ground into a hamburger, came back to beat Pat McKay on three back-body drops that shook plaster loose on the industrial exhibition in the downstairs auditorium. Dusek, weakening his man with cradle rocks, won in 24 minutes, after McKay had led most of the distance.

Nice Fella, This McKay.

McKay's favorite trick was to back Dusek against the ropes, get his neck twisted in the hemp and pull his head forward, a stunt which would have choked the average man. But Dusek wears a size 20 collar, and once permitted himself to be hung, just to show how full of steel that neck is.

Gino Garbaldi and George Vassell slugged to an interesting 30-minute draw, which many believed was the best bout of the night. They were out of the ring at the finish, and after they had been duly separated commenced a bit or extra curricula ear clouting.

Alex Aberg, who is as bald as an egg, did away with Tiger Nelson in 11 minutes with a crotch hold and body slam, while Milo Steinborn and Lew Plummer tugged to a 30-minute draw.

Gallaudet Meets Baltimore Today

An unsung but tough little Baltimore University football team will play Gallaudet College's eleven this afternoon at Kendall Green at 2:30 o'clock.

Pepped up by two weeks of practice and with a squad in fine condition, Gallaudet hopes to ride over the Baltimore with a succession of trick plays plotted to overcome the heft of the visitors. To date, however, the Blues have shown little in the way of offensive skill. Their defensive work, however, has been generally good, holding Washington College to a 6-0 score in their only local appearance of the year.

Gallaudet's line-up is essentially the same as has started in its two games this year: Brown and Ladner, ends; Myklebust and Heagle, tackles; David and Antila, guards; Stack, center; Goodin, Long, Stanfield and Gamblin, backs.

Baltimore is a handy favorite to win today, its reputation having skyrocketed last week when it beat Canisius, 7-6.

Houghton and McSarty Winners in N. Carolina

Special to The Washington Post.

Greensboro, N. C., Oct. 27.—The North Carolina open pro-amateur championship was captured today by Al Houghton, representing the Kenwood Golf and Country Club, of Washington, and G. S. McCarty with a best ball total of 66, five strokes below par. Shooting in fine form, Houghton skidded home with a brilliant 68.

Second place resulted in a tie between Ernie Ball and Garland Braxton and Henry Picard and Ed McManus. Walter Hagen, teaming with his manager, Bob Harlow, joined in a best ball of 72.

Gene Larkin, assistant pro from Chevy Chase, Washington, teamed with Leonard Tufts for a best ball of 69. Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase pro, and R. E. Davidson turned in a 73.

The District pros will be entries in the open event, beginning tomorrow.

Two D. C. Prep Elevens In Out-of-Town Games

Two local prep school teams swing into action today, both journeying to distant gridirons for their games. St. Alban's clashes with its traditional foe, St. Christopher's, at Richmond, Va., and Landon School goes to Hagerstown for a game with St. James Academy.

BAUER LOST TO MARINES TOMORROW

Special to The Washington Post.

QUANTICO, Va., Oct. 27.—A blow was dealt the football hopes of the Marines here today, virtually on the eve of the Davis and Elkins game Saturday in Washington, when it was learned that Lieut. Joe Bauer, former Navy player and now a leading half back for the Leathernecks, would be unable to play.

A bruising injury to Bauer's nose in the New River game last week is the reason Bauer will be kept on the side lines. The move leaves Corpl. Andy Zeher as the Marines' lone triple-threat back.

Coach Lieut. "Hoke" Palmer, former Ohio University gridman, sent the Marines through their final tough scrimmage of the week here this afternoon. A light limbering-up exercise will be held today. The team will come up to Washington Saturday morning.

Davis-Elkins Arrives Here Today.

The Marine Band will be one of the features at Griffith Stadium Saturday, besides a Marine detachment from the post. Among the celebrities in the stands will be Gen. Ben H. Fuller, commandant of the U. S. Marines; Admirals William A. Moffett and A. F. S. Kittelle, and Brig. Gens. Dion Williams, John A. Russell, R. H. Lane and G. C. Richards.

Davis and Elkins Senators arrive in Washington late today and will hold a light workout.

Three Prep School Teams Play Today

Three schoolboy games are offered on the local grid program today, and all are attractive.

Gonzaga treks out to Garrett Park for a fling at its old rival, Georgetown Prep, in what shapes up as the feature game of the day. Coach Orrel Mitchell has a brand-new Gonzaga team, entirely different from the one that swept the Prepmen off their feet last season. But the suburban eleven will find the new edition as formidable and powerful as the 1931 club.

St. John's encounter an old acquaintance in Alexandria High School, whom it meets on the Tidal Basin Field. Still handicapped by the loss of injured players, the Cadets have high hopes of sending the Virginians home with a defeat charged against their record.

Devitt invades the lair of Catholic University for a tussle with the powerful Cardinal Freshman. Devitt made a game stand against the Navy Plebes, although defeated, and may surprise its host.

OWENS IN FINALS.

Eugene Owens won the upper bracket of the Western High School tennis championship tourney yesterday by defeating Al Cross in a grueling three-set match. The scores were 4—6, 6—4, 6—3. Owens won a handsome silver loving cup by his victory and earned the right to meet Spencer Howell, victor in the lower bracket, in the finals for the school title.

A field of 128 competed in the tournament.

Fans Scent Tie Games in Post Contest

A CONSIDERABLE percentage of Washington football fans competing in the second of The Post's popular selector contests are scenting some tie games among the dozen battles they are asked to judge in the competition for tickets to the Maryland-Vanderbilt game here a week from tomorrow.

The Northwestern-Minnesota and Wisconsin-Ohio State battles, the features in the Big Ten tomorrow, are the games which are most frequently predicted as deadlocks, although there are scattering tie votes, too, for Harvard-Brown and Columbia-Cornell.

The folks who elect to predict ties are tempting all the breaks of the game, inasmuch as a victory by either team is credited as a loss to the selector.

The simplicity of The Post's contest has contributed to its popularity. To enter, merely clip out the appended list of games, insert the scores you believe they will be decided by, attach your name and address, and forward your selection to the Football Contest Editor of The Post.

This week's contest closes tonight at midnight with all selections in the mails before that hour being counted.

Furman Gridders Beat Citadel, 20-0

Orangeburg, S. C., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Furman University's football powerhouse, turned back in the first half, cracked the Citadel's weakened defense in the last two periods for three touchdowns and a 20-to-0 victory here today.

The game, feature of the Orangeburg County Fair, attracted a crowd of 5,000 persons who saw the Purple Hurricane keep clean its record in the S. I. A. A. and State championship races and the Cadets lose their first contest in the two divisions.

WESTERN RIFLISTS WIN.

Western High School's rifle team opened its season in an auspicious manner last week, winning first place in the highest division of the prone shooting class in the first of a series of junior biweekly matches conducted by the National Rifle Association.

Western won the event with a score of 496 out of a possible 500, and 932 out of a possible 1,000. Fresno, Calif., High School was second in the 500 target match, scoring 495, and Grover Cleveland High School, of St. Louis, Mo., was second in the 1,000 targets shoot, with a total of 904

Downer, 220 - Pound Guard to Play in Detroit Game.

GEORGETOWN University meets what is probably the sternest test on the remainder of its football schedule tomorrow night when Detroit University is played under lamplight at Detroit, the only time this year the Hilltoppers will play beneath the arcs, but an old story for the Detroiters, the majority of whose home games are at night.

Georgetown left Washington for Detroit yesterday after a brisk workout on the muddy Hilltop training field. Before leaving, Coach Tom Mills gave the boys a vigorous talking to, and the Hoya squad is fit for nail chewing. If the team clicks it feels that it will raise trouble galore for the favored Detroit eleven, whose escutcheon has been marred but once by defeat this year—and that a 7-to-9 nosing out at the hands of Holy Cross.

Georgetown is expected to try a slightly changed line-up tomorrow night, one which Coach Mills hopes will give the Hoyas that rhythm they've been looking for.

Downer Earns Berth As Guard.

The rapid improvement of Bill Downer, 220-pound guard, has won him a berth in the starting line, which also probably will include Capt. Hudson and Carolan, ends; Konopka and Katalinas, tackles; Danner, guard; Lione, Saverini, Alenty and Bradley in the back field. Al Kelly and Charlie Parcells will be used as reserve men. If Detroit shows no great inclination to pass, Dee, who is as good a line plunger as G. U. has, but who is weak on knocking down aerials, will be slipped in to help Bradley go about the business of weakening Detroit's line.

Georgetown University's gridgraph, a contraption which reproduces a football game on a large blackboard, will operate tonight at 8:15 to depict the progress of the Hoyas against Detroit. The gridgraph is in the school gymnasium.

Kin of Clark Griffith, Noted Fan, Dies at 83

With the death yesterday of Mrs. Jeanne Robertson, baseball lost one of its greatest fans. Mrs. Robertson, 83-year-old mother of Mrs. Clark Griffith, wife of the owner of the Washington Nationals, was said never to have missed a home game in 32 seasons. She has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Griffith ever since they were married and immediately became interested in baseball, with which Mr. Griffith always has been connected.

Mrs. Robertson is survived by two other daughters besides Mrs. Griffith—Mrs. Christini Ritchie, of Chicago, and Miss Jean Robertson, who resides here.

REFUSED TACKLE BERTH.

Johnny Blood, star Green Bay Packers' quarter back, quit Notre Dame without trying out for football when a freshman coach insisted he play tackle. That was in 1923, when John Blood was John McNally.

15 Backfield Men Depart With C. U.

Coach Bergman Will Use Fresh Talent in Holy Cross Game.

Both Teams to Risk Unbeaten Records in Clash Tomorrow.

DETERMINED to play 60 minutes of full-speed-ahead football, Catholic University's football squad, 31 strong, left Washington yesterday on their most valiant ramble of the year. The Cards, in perfect physical shape, will meet Holy Cross tomorrow in Worcester in a game that means more to the team and the athletic policy of the school than any single athletic contest played in five years.

Upon leaving yesterday, Coach Dutch Bergman said that he was going to use every back field man on the squad—there are fifteen—in an effort to keep a constantly fresh stream of C. U. ball runners spinning around end, off-tackle and through the middle.

Fine Reserve Strength To Help C. U.

Blessed with reserve material of great worth, C. U. probably can get away with such a move, but Holy Cross, nevertheless, remains a favorite to win, its position in Eastern football being measurably above that of the ambitious locals.

If Holy Cross' brawn and vigor does triumph over C. U. it will be the first time since the first game of 1931 that the Cards have tasted defeat, the greatest winning streak ever compiled by a C. U. team, and one of the two greatest ever compiled by a local team.

One shift will be made in the C. U. line, Bingo Flynn, 200-pound tackle, will supplant Tom Nally. Flynn is a Worcester boy.

Best American Team Ready for Shepherds

The same American U. line-up that has pulled the Methodist School out of football doldrums this season will rush on the field at the start of tomorrow's game against Shepherd College. Once again "Swampy" Borsari, diminutive little line plunging half back, is A. U.'s hope.

Shepherd is "another Bluefield," in that as little is known of the West Virginia outfit at A. U. as was known about Bluefield last week—which proved disastrous to the Methodists.

Shepherd is said to depend on Harry Maddex, full back, for most of its straight ball running.

Tomorrow's game will be at 2:30 o'clock.

Status Questioned Of 3 Vol Athletes

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—In a letter to Prof. N. W. Dougherty, faculty chairman of athletics at the University of Tennessee, Col. Harry S. Berry, of Nashville, a member of the board of trustees, today asked the athletic council to investigate rumors that three athletes there had violated the Southern Conference summer baseball rule.

He said there were rumors questioning the eligibility of "at least ten outstanding athletes on Southern Conference teams, three of whom are on the team of our university."

Col. Berry did not mention any names.

Julian Foster, of Madison, Ga., Vanderbilt end, recently was disbarred from intercollegiate athletics because played several "informal" or practice games in addition to the three games a week allowed under conference regulation.

G. U. PREP JRS. WIN.

Scoring three times in the first period, Georgetown Prep Juniors coasted to an easy 31-to-0 victory over Chevy Chase High School yesterday. Higgins and Case were outstanding in the Prep back field, while Croth and Hughes made most of the ground gained by the losers.

TESTS FACED BY EASTERN ELEVENS

Columbia, Yale Are Among Teams Hit by Injuries.

By FOSTER HAILEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Injuries to star players and uncertainties as to the capability of their substitutes under fire have upset the prospects for some of the East's major football battles this week.

Princeton, Cornell, Columbia, Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Navy, Dartmouth and New York University all face stern tests with at least one of their stars on the sidelines or ready for only light duty.

Joe (Sugar) Hugret, star end, will be out with injuries when the N. Y. U. Violets go against a crushing Purdue attack which has not failed to register at least one touchdown in the last 36 games.

Princeton Goes to Ann Arbor.

Princeton goes to Ann Arbor to meet the Big Ten leader, Michigan, minus the services of Milton Braudt, hard-running back who was injured in the Cornell game ten days ago. Michigan also has its troubles with Stanley Fay and Jack Heston lost to the back field.

Cornell and Columbia resume their old rivalry in New York in what is one of the standout games of the East with key players either missing or injured on both squads. The chances for the Lions to roar were considerably lessened when Steve Dzamba, veteran guard, and Otto Schwarz, fine defensive full back, were forced to the sidelines. Cornell will start the game without Johnny Ferraro, its star broken-field runner whose shoulder has mended slowly.

Gil Doble may have a surprise for the Lions, however, in little Homer Geoffrion, 144-pound jackrabbit back who annoyed Princeton the few minutes he was in the game. Geoffrion gained 30 yards against the Tigers in just three plays. The final gun stopped his advance.

Johnson Lost to Yale.

Joe Johnson, Yale's sophomore center who has been playing a great game, is definitely out of the Dartmouth fray because of a head concussion. Meanwhile the Indians are looking none too cheerful with Half Back Roald Morton, his nose broken, a doubtful starter against the Elis.

Brown and Harvard, both undefeated, meet at Cambridge with patched-up lineups. Jack Crickard and his understudy, Johnny Grady, both will be missing from the Crimson back field and Big Jim Esterly probably will not be at guard. Brown also has its troubles with Capt. Bill Gilbane, full back, and Joe Buonanno, fleet half, both nursing injuries.

BY BOB CONSIDINE.

THE uncertain footing at Griffith Stadium, caused by recent rains and a seasonal softening of the turf, has made of tonight's intersectional football game between George Washington and the University of Iowa a toss-up, with much of the so-called smart money coming in on Iowa to win by a whisker. The first kick-off is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Outweighing G. W. 18 pounds to the man in the line, Iowa has a forthright advantage in that sector tonight. Its big line men, who average 196 pounds, are little affected by the damp underfooting. They are products of a general Warner system, a style of play where shiftiness of line-men is not demanded. Unless a hot sun stiffens the field today, Iowa's line men are going to dig in tonight and it does not look as if they can be moved.

Colonials May Surprise With Trick Plays.

Tricky, dangerous football—of the sort that Tulsa plays—is what the Colonials may have to resort to tonight, and of all the teams in the District they seem to have the best chance of confounding a big methodical and somewhat unimaginative team like Iowa. For instance, G. W. has two left handed passers, a series of trick lateral and short-pass plays, and a willingness to take a chance.

Two eventualities militate against G. W. tonight. For one thing, Iowa will outkick the Colonials. Georgie Teyro, triple-threat quarter back of the Hawkeyes, averaged 47 yards a punt last week against Minnesota. Otts Kreimelmeyer, G. W.'s leading kicker, has been supplanted at full back by Chris Doose. Then, both of G. W.'s triple threats—Lee Carlin and Johnny Fenlon—are too brittle to stand much pummeling, since neither has fully recovered from earlier injuries.

G. W.'s most electrifying plays are expected to come tonight from Nig McCarver, fastest back on the field, or Doose, whose ruggedness and

MR. SPONGE, AT 2 TO 1, WINS THREE-HORSE LAUREL FEATURE

Microphone, Pace-Setter, Falters

Aged Sprinter Comes From Rear to Win by Half Length.

Pompeius Is Second as Challenge in Stretch Fails.

By WALTED HAIGHT.

THREE sons of three of the outstanding mudders of turf history hooked up at Laurel yesterday afternoon and the ever-popular Luke McLuke, represented by Mr. Sponge, carried off the first honors over Pompey, represented by Pompeius, and Flying Ebony, represented by Microphone. This trio was left of the field of six named overnight after the rain had gotten in its work on the track to leave the course muddy.

Some 10,000 saw a brilliant race with every horse easily distinguishable to all the customers in contrast to the large fields, where mamma often finds she had the winner after rooting for the wrong horse.

There was no delay at the post. Microphone hopped to the front as the barrier rose for the 6-furlong dash. Mr. Sponge was second. The group appeared tied head to tail as they went down the back stretch. Microphone then pulled away to a two-length lead and Pompeius, with the gentleman rider, G. H. (Pete) Bostwick, 5 pounds overweight, in the saddle, an equal distance away.

Microphone's Lead Melts At Stretch.

At the turn for the stretch, Microphone's lead began to melt and Mr. Sponge came on to take the front position as the group straightened out in the stretch. Microphone was tiring fast and Pompeius was just finding his speed. Mack Garner kept pumping on Mr. Sponge as Bostwick and his mount finished with a rush, but it was too late. Mr. Sponge was credited with a half-length victory in the charts.

Scotch Nell and The End, the latter a first time starter from the Glen Riddle barn, hooked up in a brilliant stretch duel in the opener. Scotch Nell looked like a beaten juvenile as The End went to the front at the sixteenth pole, but Apprentice Fischer went to the whip and the Audley Farm youngster came again to take a nose decision. Lower Ten was third.

Grand Acre, the property of G. L. Goodacre, of Washington, led from start to finish in the second race to beat Fair Bill and Sir Kendal home. Calvert, on the winner, rode a heady race, giving his mount a breather on the far turn and then pulling away to an easy victory.

Negopoli Scores in Third.

Negopoli went to the post an even-money choice and proved the second winning favorite. Mills rode a nicely timed race to come from behind the fast pace set by Skirt and Burnside to pass that pair in the stretch. The pacemakers finished in the order that they ran most of the distance.

The influence of the sire Pompey continued to be felt in the mud when Pompet, W. R. Coe's colt, with Bobby Jones in the saddle, came up to defeat, among others, War Glory and Sky Haven in the fourth race.

BROWNLEE SPEEDSTER.

In John Brownlee Duke University has a ball carrier who several times has stepped the century under 10 seconds.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOTCH NELL, $7.10, $4.00, $3.20; THE END, $13.00, $8.80; LOWER TEN, $4.90.

SCOTCH NELL, at home in the going and hard hustled, lost command after the first half mile, but continued resolutely under punishment and outfinished THE END. Latter, a strong factor and strongly ridden, gained command when entering the home stretch, but tired suddenly nearing the finish. LOWER TEN improved her position on the inside, but could not threaten the first two. CORRYMEELA went evenly throughout. HIGH MIST was held safe. SUDIE B. closed fast from a slow beginning. PROM GIRL had no excuses. ANIMATION lacked speed at all stages, as did CIRCLE ROMAN.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, foaled in Maryland. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 2:19. Off at 2:20½. †J. C. Kinchloe-G. F. Goodacre entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRAND ACRE (entry), $4.70, $2.30, $2.20; FAIR BILL, $2.90, $2.50; SIR KENDAL, $3.10.

GRAND ACRE, taken in hand and given a breathing spell when leaving the back stretch, responded readily when shaken up and held FAIR BILL safe. Latter, kept in a prominent position, made a stout effort when midway of the final turn, but could not seriously threaten the winner in the stretch. SIR KENDAL, in the first division from the start, could not make up any ground in the final half mile. FAIR JUDGE saved ground and raced well. KAFFA could never improve her position. The others were outrun.

THIRD RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 2:46. Off at 2:51. Winner, G. C. Winfrey's ch. h. (7), by Negofol—Little Polly. Trained by G. C. Winfrey. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:25, 0:50 2-5, 1:16, 1:44 1-5, 2:09 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NEGOPOLI, $4.10, $3.10, $2.70; SKIRT, $7.40, $5.40; BURNSIDE, $6.50.

NEGOPOLI stumbled repeatedly going to the first turn when kept on the inside, came around his field in the last half mile, disposed of SKIRT and drew out stoutly. SKIRT, ridden hard to shake off BURNSIDE, saved ground wherever possible, but could not stay when the winner challenged. BURNSIDE, hustled into a brief lead, could not keep pace when put to a drive. LUCKY RACKET was held safe when the real test came. LIGHT BREEZE was outrun. LUCKY CARTER tired after seven furlongs. MONOCLE was never a factor.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs; allowances. The Cambridge. For 2-year-old colts and geldings. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:21. Off at 3:24½. Winner, W. R. Coe's ch. c. (2), by Pompey—Egret. Trained by B. Creech. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:13 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POMPEIT, $8.90, $5.10, $3.80; WAR GLORY, $6.90, $4.40; SKY HAVEN, $4.80.

POMPET moved into a forward position with a rush when securing racing room on the inside, came resolutely when straightened into the home stretch and came up in the final strides. WAR GLORY, hard ridden to shake off KUMMEL and SKY HAVEN, saved ground, but faltered nearing the finish. SKY HAVEN, a strong factor all the way, held on with good courage for the final drive. SILK FLAG lost ground for the entire journey and weakened under severe punishment. RED RUN saved a lot of ground and raced well. INLANDER could not menace at any stage. KUMMEL displayed a brief flash of speed.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. St. Leonard's Handicap. For all ages. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:51. Off at 3:51½. Winner, J. E. Widener's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MR. SPONGE, $6.00, out, out; POMPEIUS, out, out; MICROPHONE, out.

MR. SPONGE, rated within striking distance of MICROPHONE, challenged stoutly when entering the home stretch, wore the pacemaker down, but had to be urged to withstand POMPEIUS. He pulled up lame, latter, timidly handled, was eased back when leaving the back stretch to the outside and closed fast under very weak handling. MICROPHONE went into an easy lead in the first half mile, but faltered fast in the closing furlong.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:22. Off at 4:25½. Winner, A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GULLY JUMPER, $4.90, $3.20, $2.50; JIMMY D., $12.40, $4.60; DON TASKER, $2.70.

GULLY JUMPER, closer up than usual and saving ground wherever possible, came willingly to overtake JIMMY D. and was up in the final ten yards. JIMMY D., prominent all the way, crossed in front of DON TASKER when taking command at the final furlong pole, but could not stall off the winner. DON TASKER raced into a brief lead when midway of the far turn, and held on gamely after being bothered by JIMMY D. when straightened into the home stretch. AUSTERLITZ II showed no good effort. SAM PASS was kept in the deepest footing and tired. DADDY NELSON was never a factor. TUFFY G. raced poorly. EAGER PLAY was pulled up when he was knocked off stride at the break by DON TASKER.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:56. Off at 5:00. Winner, E. J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCESS ZELDA, $4.90, $2.90, $2.50; TRIPLE THREAT, $7.30, $4.90; VIMONT, $3.70.

PRINCESS ZELDA, at home in the going, shook off TRIPLE THREAT when midway of the back stretch, drew into a commanding lead and held sway thereafter. TRIPLE THREAT, a stout factor for six furlongs, was done thereafter, but easily held the others safe. VIMONT, well placed, could not improve his position and outstayed GARLIC. Latter, placed to punishment early, lost ground at the first turn, but hung badly after making his effort. The others never figured as factors.

Stocks Climb Half of Point; Speculation Sinks to Ebb

Firming of Grain Markets Aids Rise; Turnover, 739,102 Shares.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—With speculative interest continuing at low ebb, prices moved listlessly on the stock exchange today, the main body of stocks closing a fraction higher.

Total transfers reached 739,102 shares, After a dull opening, stocks moved forward 1 to 2 points around midday when firmer wheat prices appeared to buoy up security speculation. Later, however, the list turned downward and early gains were replaced with small losses. A gentle wave of buying appeared in the final moments of trading which tilted prices a shade above their closing figures of yesterday.

Gains of around a point were made by American Can, Corn Products, Pullman, Pacific Gas and American Waterworks. Public Service of New Jersey gained nearly 2. But a number of leaders, including U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Illinois Central, International Harvester, Pennsylvania, New York Central and Woolworth were unchanged to a fraction higher. General Motors closed a shade lower. Additional earnings reports covering the third quarter showed deficits for a large number of cases. The National Steel Co. reported 7 cents a share earned on the capital stock against 26 cents the preceding quarter and 15 cents in the corresponding period of 1931.

The Philips Petroleum Co. report attracted attention, the company having earned 28 cents a share last quarter against 6 cents in the corresponding 1931 period. Another report which commanded interest was that of New York Central which reported net operating income of $7,437,805 for the month of September against $2,183,934 in September, 1931. According to company estimates, the road was able to cover fixed charges last month with a balance of about $5,900 left over.

The foreign exchange market steadied today with the British pound sterling closing at $3.27¾, unchanged from the day before. Wheat closed ¼ to 1 cent higher and cotton gained 26 to 45 cents a bale.

What the Stock Market Did

	Thurs.	Wed.
Advances	239	207
Declines	111	183
Unchanged	118	114
Total issues traded	468	506

Stocks.

Speculative interest at low ebb permitted the market to drift listlessly. Firming of grain prices finally added tone, and stocks advanced five-tenths of a point. Gains ranged from fractional amounts to 1 and 2 points. The turnover was 739,102 shares.

Bonds.

Irregular dealing, marked by considerable indecision, resulted finally in a net gain of one-tenth. A moderate pick-up in rails and industrials increased activity, which pushed the trading volume to $7,984,000.

Curb.

A firmer tone marked trading, despite extreme sluggishness. Price changes were narrow. Oils showed some improvement. Considerable activity developed in utilities. Industrials were irregularly higher. The turnover was 110,000 shares.

Wheat.

Heavy Canadian exports, 3,500,000 bushels in 48 hours, enabled wheat to recover balance and gain up to 1 cent over Wednesday's extreme lows. Dealers saw an opportunity to get flour materials cheap, and buying boosted prices. Provisions were weaker. December wheat sold at 45½ to 45⅝ cents.

Cotton.

Steadier undertone marked cotton trading. Prices stiffened and closed 5 to 9 points higher. Southern selling was absorbed by foreign and domestic buying. December contracts climbed to 6.37. Liverpool reported that hedging was less active.

BONDS RECORD GAIN IN IRREGULAR SALES

Pick-up in Some Industrials and Rails Sent Volume to $7,984,000.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The bond market continued to struggle feebly in the grip of indecision today and, despite rallying flurries, finished with a decidedly irregular appearance.

Outside of a moderate pick-up in some of the rail and industrial specialties and increased activity in some foreign and United States Government loans, trading was listless, with the turnover in most instances limited to a few transactions.

Sales totaled $7,984,000, par value, while the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced one-tenth of a point.

A substantial advance in net income for September, reported by the New York Central, caused a run-up in this company's maturities of from 1 to around 5 points and brought a spark of life into a number of other carrier liens. Various railway maturities moved up as much as 3 or more points before profit taking appeared. The average for 20 selected rails was only up one-tenth of a point at the close.

While the utilities showed a slightly easier tendency, a number of industrials improved. Among these were issues of Federal Metals, Fisk Rubber, Goodrich, Goodyear, Shell Union Oil, Texas Corporation, United Drug and U. S. Rubber. Power and light company bonds were rather soft.

Losses of a point or more were recorded by some obligations of Australia, Cuba, Germany, Panama and Japan. The Argentines firmed, as did the Colombians and Polish. British 5½s eased along with most Canadian bonds.

The principal buying in the Government department was in Treasury 3½s, 548 bonds changing hands at a gain of 1-32 of a point.

Silver Prices Heavy.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Current heaviness of silver is attributed by dealers to lack of speculative interest and fading hopes of any immediate developments looking to extension of the white metal's currency use.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Business continued small on the stock exchange. Prices opened easy due to the further drop in sterling exchange. Gilt-edged securities, industrials, transatlantic and oil shares improved later on the recovery of sterling and helped to make a better tone at the close.

Paris—The firmness of rentes gave the bourse a good tone at the opening. International issues improved, while mining and rubber shares also gained. The closing was well orientated.

Berlin—Prices were unsettled on the bourse, but showed signs of improvement at the close.

World Copper Conference To Be Called After Election

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Another conference of world copper producers to discuss stabilization will be held here immediately after the presidential election, it was reported in Wall street today.

Representatives of the Union Miniere du Haut Katanga, Belgian-controlled copper property in South Africa, will, it is understood, arrive in New York early in November, but it has not been definitely decided whether the representatives of the Roan Antelope and Rhokana Corporation, both foreign producers, will arrive at the same time.

Conferences are not likely to start, it was said in copper circles today, until the British Parliament has acted on the proposed tariff on copper giving preferential treatment to the empire's copper output. However, it is probable that a conference with representatives of Katanga, Roan Antelope, Rhokana, Rio Tinto and the principal Canadian producers will be under way in New York by the middle of November. Preliminary discussions between individual producers will, in all probability, precede the general parley.

Copper interests here say they have no doubt that producers in Africa are in favor of a concerted plan for meeting the present situation with a minimum of delay. It is recognized in all quarters that irrespective of the effect of tariffs on world copper markets, the main problem remains of arriving at some acceptable method of keeping production from increasing unduly with improvement in copper consumption under more favorable business conditions.

Grain Exports Up 397,000 Bushels

Total for Week Reaches 1,534,000 Units; Still Under 1931.

(Associated Press.)

Grain exports last week from the United States amounted to 1,534,000 bushels, against 1,137,000 for the week previous, and 4,909,000 bushels during the corresponding week of last year. Commerce Department figures yesterday gave the following comparisons between last week's exports and those of the week before:

Barley, 438,000 bushels, against 153,000; corn, 359,000 bushels, against 371,000; oats, 38,000 bushels, against 45,000; wheat, 705,000 bushels, against 568,000. No exports of rye were reported for either week.

Canadian grains exported last week from United States ports totaled 352,000 bushels, against 712,000 bushels the previous week, while exports of North American wheat flour were 64,000 barrels, against 48,000 barrels the week before.

Brokers Are "At Loss" On License Suspension

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Halsey, Stuart & Co. issued a statement tonight saying it was "at a loss" to understand the action of the Michigan State Securities Commission today in resuspending the company's license in that State.

The Michigan securities commissioner was quoted in dispatches from Lansing as saying new evidence had been found which warranted resuspension. The company was first suspened several weeks ago, but reinstated last week.

Booth Fisheries Claim Assets Exceed Debts

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The Booth Fisheries Company, which last week filed a petition of voluntary bankruptcy, today presented in the United States Court a statement showing that its assets were estimated at $7,249,282.20 and its liabilities at $6,839,111.71.

Attorneys who filed the statement said that property holdings of the company, and places where debts were contracted are in all parts of the country. The main office is in Chicago.

CURB PRICES FIRMER IN SLUGGISH DEALING

Quotation Changes Moved Narrowly in Sales of 110,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The curb market developed a somewhat firmer tone today, but trading remained extremely sluggish, and price changes were largely inconsequential.

The turnover of 110,000 shares was in the neighborhood of the low daily volume which this market had been reporting all this week.

Oils showed a little firmness. Standard of Ohio, which had just increased gasoline prices, was up a point in a small turnover, and Standard of Indiana rose a fraction in fairly active trading. Gulf was also a little higher.

Oil centers were watching the Texas situation closely, where martial law has again been put into effect in the oil fields, after the Federal court had declared the proration illegal. It was felt in Wall street that producers might voluntarily agree to keep production in check.

Utilities moved narrowly. There was again considerable activity in Electric Bond & Share, that issue getting up more than a point, but it was up only ⅝ at the finish. Industrials were irregularly higher. Aluminum Co. pushed up 3 points. Federated Metals rose a fraction, on publication of terms under which American Smelting proposes to acquire the company. The new Fisk issues were again firm.

Western Air Express pushed up nearly 3 in a thin market. Great Atlantic & Pacific, a high-priced chain store issue, rose 7 points to 148. Niles Bement Pond was a soft spot, off nearly 2 at one time, but regaining part of its loss later.

Brokers' License Again Suspended by Michigan

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The brokerage license of Halsey, Stuart & Co. again was suspended by the State securities commission today. The company is under Federal indictment on charges of using the mails to defraud.

The license was suspended several weeks ago, but was reinstated last week. George F. McKenzie, securities commissioner, said new evidence has been found which warranted resuspension. Officials of the company were ordered to appear October 29 to show cause why the license should not be revoked.

Offers to Buy Cottons Rejected on Low Price

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Offers to buy more cotton goods on contract were submitted in the dry goods markets today, but most of them were declined because of the recent drop in prices. Catalogue and chain stores report a steady demand for staple dry goods, and business decidedly better than last spring.

Silk goods are quiet before the opening of a new spring season. New types of low priced floor coverings and lower prices on some lines are increasing sales moderately. Knitters are calling for more rayon and shipments continue full. Burlaps were steady and quiet.

New Steel Mill Planned In West Virginia District

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 27 (A.P.). Follansbee Brothers, operating sheet and tin mills at Follansbee, W. Va., and Toronto, Ohio, today announced plans for the erection of a $300,000 strip mill at Follansbeee.

The present open hearth buildings at Follansbee, with additions, will be used for the new plant. The firm's open hearth work will be conducted at Toronto, products being shipped across the river to Follansbee for finishing. The company's plants have been closed since last June, when the firm broke off relations with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN ON CANADA EXPORTS

Other Grains Follow Rise From Bottom Levels; Provisions Weaken.

Chicago, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Big export business in Canadian wheat, 3,500,000 bushels during the last 48 hours, did much today to rally grains from record-breaking low prices.

Seizing opportunity to get flour material cheap, domestic millers were also rather brisk buyers of wheat. Overseas demand for United States corn was likewise in evidence, though offset somewhat by the fact that country offerings to arrive were larger.

Wheat closed firm at almost the day's top, ⅝ to 1 cent higher than yesterday's finish; corn, ¼ to ½ up; oats, unchanged ot ⅛ higher, and provisions unchanged to 45 cents off.

An outstanding stimulus to the wheat market was that for at least the time being an end appeared to have been reached in the heavy liquidating sales which had gone hand in hand with the recent severe fall of prices. A considerable part of today's purchasing was based on opinions current that a natural recovery of some extent was to be expected. On the other hand, price upturns met with selling from United States Government sponsored sources, and it was pointed out that export business in Canadian wheat had been facilitated by a tumble of Canadian exchange rates to 9½ per cent discount.

Argentine News Favorable.

Argentine crop news was auspicious except that temperatures were above normal, and that it was feared rust would develop in wheat if dampness continued. Some notice was taken of reports that a conference of representatives of Canada, Argentina, Australia and the United States had been suggested by the Argentine minister of agriculture with a view to limiting wheat acreage for two years. In various quarters, too, significance was given announcement that a cargo of Argentine wheat had been dispatched to the Danube River, confirming assertions that instead of exporting wheat this year, some Balkan countries would have to import.

Chicago handlers of corn credited with having disposed of 100,000 bushels for export, on top of 500,000 bought yesterday at the seaboard to be sent overseas. Danubian corn offerings abroad were reported to have been withdrawn. Oats borrowed firmness from corn. Provisions weakened with hog values.

MRS. HAYNES WINNER AT COLUMBIA

Cops Women's Title by Beating Mrs. Beller, 8 and 6.

RETAINING her title as Columbia Country Club women's champion, Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes yesterday overwhelmed Mrs. J. W. Beller, 8 and 6 in the finals.

Favorite from the start of the tournament, Mrs. Haynes stroked away in championship fashion, sweeping into an early lead and rounding the turn with a comfortable advantage.

Mrs. J. A. Marr defeated Mrs. Norman B. Frost, 7 and 5, to win the first flight consolations. Mrs. Newman Little won the second flight by beating Mrs. A. C. Minnix, 2 and 1, while Mrs. Herman Stabler won the consolations with a 1-up victory over Mrs. E. M. Amick. Miss Ruth Reilly turned back Miss Mary Minnix, 1 up, on the twenty-first hole in the third-flight finals. In the consolations, Mrs. A. S. Gardiner defeated Mrs. H. C. Bangs, 3 and 2.

Tschiffely Trophy to Mrs. Bradbury.

Mrs. F. W. Bradbury yesterday finished the 36-hole medal handicap tournament at Washington Golf and Country Club with a net of 179 to win the Dbuglas Tschiffely trophy. Mrs. Bradbury turned in an 89 net the first day and followed with a 115—25—90.

Four others were deadlocked for second prize with nets of 183 each. They were Mrs. J. H. Wootton, Mrs. C. H. Merrillat, Mrs. C. B. Stewart and Mrs. O. Thacker. With three other prizes to be awarded, the quartet began aother eighteen-hole journey, but darkness forced them to abandon the task after they holed out on the fifteenth. Mrs. Wootton had a gross 97, Mrs. Merrillat a 90, Mrs. Stewart a 95 and Mrs. Thacker a 97. They will complete the round this afternoon.

An eighteen-hole tournament will be held this afternoon by the Kiwanis Club at the Washington Golf and Country Club, with 40 members expected to participate.

Columbia Women Hosts To 1932 Rivals.

Keen competition is promised today in the invitation team match tournament which Columbia Country Club women are sponsoring over their home links. Members of District teams who played against the Columbia outfit will compete in the field day program.

Bob Stevenson, West Potomac golf course manager, set a new course record yesterday in defeating Jack Tucker, veteran pro, in an eighteen-hole match, 5 and 3. Stevenson, a former Penn State golf captain, toured his home links in 29—36—61, cracking the former mark held by Bill Carson by two strokes.

Although beaten, Tucker gained considerable consolation by securing a hole in one on the 125-yard seventh. Here he spanked his mashie shot dead to the cup. The ball landed on the green a few feet from the hole and trickled in.

Jimmy Mack, Philly Star, in Portner Bout

Philadelphia's sensational bantamweight, Jimmy Mack, pride of Max Hoff's stable, makes his debut at Portner's Arena Monday night meeting Eddie Burle, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Mack, according to reports from the Quaker City, is turning that city into a bantamweight town. He is a former amateur champion and has been under the wing of Hoff only a year.

K. O. Burns, Baltimore middleweight and Henry Irving, Northeast Wildcat, mix it on six. Roy Manley and Arthur de Beve are listed for another six-heat affair.

CELTICS SEEK GAME.

St. Mary's Celtics are without a game Sunday and would like to book a contest with a strong out-of-town professional team. Manager Buck Grier signed Britton, former North Carolina U. half back; Dunham, formerly of the Marines, and Mat Toomey, former Gonzaga stalwart, during the week.

Teams desiring to play the Celtics should call Vic Gauzza, at Vic's Sport Shop, 716 Ninth street northwest, Metropolitan 6743.

Hitting the Headpin

GEN. SHERMAN, of Civil War fame, once passed around the remark that war is something very unpleasant. Evidently he did not mean the team in the Ladies Federal League. Last night War applied Gen. Sherman's statement to the pins, and finished with the fat total of 831, high game of the evening. Treasury collected 1,493 pins, to bag high team set.

Mrs. Malcolm drew a perfect head on the headpin and rocked the bottles for high set, 342, and included in the three games a 135 score, also high. The firing was at Arcadia.

Yale, V. M. I. and Maryland continued their race for the lead in the Intercollegiate League by whitewashing their opponents last night. Maryland came through with a 1,541 set, and V. M. I. almost hung up a new game record for the loop, rolling 563. Neal Anderson held V. M. I. with a 363 set, but it remained for "Bumpa" Buell to manage the maples for a 137 game.

Team honors in the War Department League were awarded the Adjutants with its 561 and 1,656. Mathews rolled a 154 game and Coudey piled the wood 371 pins high for set laurels.

The newly organized Takoma Park Ladies League will open its season on the Takoma Alleys next Thursday night. Mrs. C. S. Shields was elected president at the organization meeting. Other officers chosen were Mrs. L. Reynolds, vice president; Miss Doris Potter, secretary-treasurer, and Miss Ruth Ivers, official scorer. One franchise is vacant. It can be obtained by communicating with the manager of the Takoma alleys.

Heffner's 151 game and 380 set featured the Takoma Park League activities last night. Ortel rolled 150 and 368, but could not overtake the flying Heffner.

After wandering around in circles for some time, the Indians finally stumbled on their time-worn war path last night and the result was a 1,500 set and 871 game, highest in the Interior Department loop at the Columbia Alleys. Gann's 360 set and Falck's 153 game topped the individual pin spilling.

The high cost of someting or other is going higher. Cost piled up 1,541 pins for the high team set in the I. C. C. Examiners League at Columbia. Recapture hooked up with 545 game, another high for the evening. Bradford's 363 set and Booth's 154 game were the best of the individual scores.

"Lefty" Wooden left his cakes and pies long enough to roll 386 and 151 and lead Cook's Bakery to a 2-1 victory over the leading Book of Washington quintet in the Recreation League. Eddie Keith's 376 was the best of acores recorded by the Bookmen. Simm's Music Studio pounded out 1,745 and 607 to take all three from the Printers.

Al Works rolled a 377 set for Parnum's Bowling Shoes, but Judd & Detwiler took the odd game in their National Capital League match at Lucky Strike. Paul Bryan hung up the high game, 138.

Harry Blum's 369 total for the three games took the cake in the Automotive League at Lucky Strike. H. G. Hayden's 137 copped high game prize. Stewart Motors did a bit of freewheeling and rolled 567 and 1,639 for the team awards.

Aeronautics Information knocked the bottles for a 559 game and 1,504 set to head the Commerce Interbureau loop at the Strike. Mills, with 144 and 378, stowed away the individual laurels.

Gonzaga "B" Team Bows to Friends, 7-6

Friends' School varsity eleven won a close game from Gonzaga's "B" team yesterday, 7 to 6.

David Hay, quarter back, gave Friends' School its touchdown in the second quarter, escorting the ball over from the 10-yard line. A pass to Eakin, center, for the extra point, proved the margin of victory.

Gonzaga launchd an attack in the third quarter, marching to the 8-yard stripe, where Markle skirted left end for the touchdown. The try for extra point failed.

MARYLAND A. C. DRILLS.

Determined to lift itself out of the mire of last place in the Independent League, the Maryland Athletic Club eleven is practicing very night this week on its home field at Seat Pleasant, in order to be ready for the invasion of the Mercury eleven Sunday.

MARYLAND U. SET FOR V. M. I.

Seeks First Conference Win of Season at Richmond.

SEEKING its first victory in the Southern Conference—which it all but dominated last year—Maryland University football team went through a snappy drill yesterday afternoon with Ray Poppelman, dynamic half back, once more in the business of bowling over opposition.

Fired by a desire to win, Maryland runs up against V. M. I. in Richmond tomorrow in a game it feels it must win, to give the squad the momentum and confidence which it will sorely need the following Saturday when Vanderbilt is met at Griffith Stadium in Maryland's most pretentious home game of the season.

Poppelman, who was recalled from disbarment by a written plea from the grid squad, will not start against V. M. I., but it is certain that his bull-like rushes will have a chance to spin for Maryland before the fray is very old.

Poppelman Not Likely To Start Game.

Coach Curley Byrd feels that Poppelman's absence from practice for a week practically nullified his chances of playing against V. M. I., at least at the outset.

The probable Maryland line-up tomorrow is Hines and Benner, ends; Farrell and Keenan, tackles; Rouzer and McDonald, guards; Webb, center; Woods, quarter back; Nilson, left half; Widmyer, right half, and Buscher, full back. Hines may be supplanted by Vincent before game time and Mitchell may go in for McDonald.

G. W. FACES IOWA IN NIGHT CONTEST

ability to pass with either hand should prove a distinct boon for his team. Incidentally, an all-Texas backfield will start for the locals—Johnny Baker, quarter back, from Anson; Nig McCarver, half back, from Ballinger; Finis Parrish, half back, from Hortense, and Chris Doose, full back, from Ballinger.

Iowa is fundamentally a defensive team. It plays a game of frustration, rather than attack. But its back field of Teyro, Schneidman, Schmidt and Kuhn are not to be taken lightly, particularly in view of the fact that two of G. W.'s ablest linemen, Zuzu Stewart and Tom Dike are ailing, although Stewart will start.

A crowd of more than 10,000 is in prospect tonight as the Colonials pit tricks against brawn in the second great intersectional game George Washington has presented to local audiences this year. It is the first time a Big Ten team has ever played in Washington, and G. W. is fired with a mighty ambition to win before a home audience, and thus more than wipe out a 7-0 loss to the same team last year.

HAWKS PRACTICE TONIGHT.

The Brentwood Hawks will practice tonight at 8 o'clock at the Park View Playground in preparation for Sunday's game with the Alexandria Praters.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

IN eastern United States droves of passenger pigeons once lived in such great numbers that they are said to have been the most plentiful birds in the world. In 1914 the last one known to live died in the Zoological Gardens of Cincinnati. The birds, because of their nesting habits, fell easy prey to pioneer hunters and early settlers. Natural enemies and wholesale invasion of their nesting grounds by hunters finally resulted in extinction of the passenger pigeon.

One naturalist, in 1808, estimated a flock in Kentucky to contain more than 2,000,000,000 birds. In 1813 another writer described seeing great droves of the pigeons pass over one place for three successive days in numbers so great that the sky was darkened.

Kid Goodman's bout with Knockout Brown in Boston, 1910, resulted in one of the strangest knock-outs on record. He was knocked back against the ropes and out—but got caught in the ropes and stood upright after he was unconscious.

Past glories and future hopes of the American Navy were honored on Navy Day yesterday.

With bluejackets and Marines playing host at the Washington Navy Yard, a record attendance mark was established when more than 147,000 persons passed through the gates and watched the myriad naval activities on exhibition.

The occasion was not neglected officially. At the White House, the President and Mrs. Hoover presented the President's flag to Commander Louis J. Gulliver, captain of "Old Ironsides." Among those present were Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and the Assistant Secretary of War Ernest Lee Jahncke.

As is the custom, the Navy was cited by the United States Army, Secretary Adams, Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, commandant of Marines, receiving congratulatory communications from Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff.

Adams Gives Radio Talk.

In a radio message, Secretary Adams described George Washington as a "naval strategist" and urged the Nation to remember the words of the First President that "to be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace." Adams also lauded President Roosevelt, on whose birthday the annual celebration is held.

The great throngs at the Navy Yard were capably directed through the various buildings of the naval gun factory and to other interesting exhibitions. More than a score of children were treated in a hospital tent for various minor hurts, none of a serious nature.

More than 20,000 persons visited the decks of the Constitution in the period from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m., when the yard was open. The Postoffice Department established a special cachet for mail deposited in the ship's postoffice.

Deep Sea Diving.

Deep sea diving demonstrations in the Anacostia River, the catapulting of sea planes into the air, as is done from the decks of fighting ships, and a great air parade of combat and scouting planes were added attractions at the yard.

As in past years, Alexandria and the Navy Yard were bombed with rubber balls dropped from planes. Throughout the day the Navy Band played at intervals, in addition to broadcasting two Nation-wide radio programs.

At the John Paul Jones statue in Potomac Park several organizations gathered shortly after noon and did honor to the great Revolutionary hero. Included in the gathering were members of the Military Order of the World War, the National Sojourners, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Navy League and others. An address was delivered by Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries. The Marine Band played.

Knights of Columbus gathered at the Commodore Barry statue in Franklin Square to honor the "first admiral of the American Navy." Frederick J. Rice, State deputy for the District, placed a wreath at the statue's foot and delivered a brief address.

Mine Sweeper Viewed.

Visitors were welcomed at the Naval Observatory, the Naval Air Station and the Torpedo Station at Alexandria. At the latter, a mine sweeper was docked for the public's inspection.

The influence of the United States for world peace must be maintained principally through undiminished strength, Secretary Adams declared at a luncheon meeting at the Raleigh Hotel preceding the opening of the Kiwanis convention last night. Rear Admiral J. V. Case also addressed the gathering.

Secretary Adams was presented with a cake by Lewis T. Breuninger, jr., 7-year-old son of the vice president of the Washington club.

Last night at the Raleigh Hotel the Washington Branch of the Fleet Reserve Association held its fourth annual Navy Day banquet and ball. Admiral Robert E. Coontz and Commander John F. Shafroth were speakers.

HUGE CROWDS VIEW WONDERS AT NAVY YARD

Officers Stage Exhibits During Alexandria Fete

Navy Day was celebrated in Alexandria yesterday with displays of various Navy activities at the naval torpedo station, under the direction of Lieut. J. N. Opie, officer in charge.

A Navy bombing plane flew low over King street and dropped bombs in the shape of small parachutes and rubber balls. Exhibitions of deep sea diving, the firing of a naval gun and firing of a torpedo were held. Other exhibitions from the naval torpedo station dock were presented. A large number of school children visited the station during the day, and each child was presented with a souvenir.

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club entertained several high ranking naval officers at luncheon yesterday, the Navy Day program replacing the usual Kiwanis program. Purvis Taylor was program chairman.

Navy Day Is Observed By U. S. Asiatic Fleet

Shanghai, China, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The Asiatic fleet of the United States Navy observed Navy Day with receptions aboard various ships today in numerous Oriental ports. American residents and foreigners in the respective areas were guests.

The chief observance here was the reception of Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, the commander in chief, aboard his flagship, the Houston. On numerous smaller ships, naval officers and men were holding a day-long entertainment not only for virtually the entire American community but also for hundreds of other nationalities.

Yule Street Work Ban Ordered.

To prevent the tearing up of any streets during the Christmas holidays, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, yesterday informed public utilities that no permits would be issued for underground work on the District thoroughfares during December.

FOUR GIRL SINGERS WIN AUDITION TEST

Best Amateur Performers Chosen in Washington for Radio Finals.

As a result of preliminary eliminations among 25 young women singers of the District of Columbia, held at WRC last night, four amateurs were selected for the Washington finals of the National Radio Audition, to be broadcast about ten days hence. The four girls whose voices were rated best were:

Catherine May Toomey, 1204 Sixteenth street northwest; Dorothy Edythe Davenport, 1116 Ninth street northwest; Helen Z. Bonofrio, 3700 Massachusetts avenue; Ina Marie Holtzscheiter, 335 Kentucky avenue southeast.

A similar elimination for young men will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at WRC to select four male voices, which also will be broadcast in the finals, when one boy and girl will be chosen to represent the District of Columbia in the Northeast district audition in New York City in November. At that time two Eastern regional winners will be selected to participate in the national finals held by the Atwater Kent Foundation, sponsor of the contest. Total prizes will amount to $15,000 in cash.

In the District of Columbia finals the radio audience will be asked to participate in the judging, in addition to musical experts who will hear the eight singers in the WRC studios.

Brown States Service to Be Sole Publicity

Condemning the publicity attained by the Police Department in the past, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, newly appointed police chief of Washington, speaking before a meeting of the Advertising Club of Washington yesterday noon at the Raleigh Hotel, emphatically pointed out the "advertising we are going to do will be in the form of service to the citizens of the District of Columbia."

Maj. Brown also pointed out that there is absolutely no reason at all why the Washington police force should be modeled after any other force in any other city of the country. On the contrary, he said, the Capital's Police Department should be an example to every other department in the United States.

Thomas P. Litflepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, also spoke, and seconded Maj. Brown's ideas. Mr. Littlepage based his address on the best manner of advertising Washington.

He divided the types of persons wanted in Washington into two classes, the first of which was the permanent resident of desirable class and the second the tourist class. He pointed out that no other city in the country had the advantage and beauty as had the Nation's Capital, thus making it appealing for residents. Of all the cities in the world, none compares with its sightseeing interest for the tourist, he declared.

EMERGENCY RELIEF TO BE TOPIC TODAY

Period Between Depletion of Fund and Meeting of Congress Is Problem.

The special unemployment emergency relief committee, of which Sidney F. Taliaferro is chairman, will meet this afternoon to discuss plans for operation between the time the $350,000 fund is exhausted and the appropriation of additional money by Congress.

It is planned to retain the special relief organization, of which L. A. Halbert is director, even after the distribution of relief is transferred to the Community Chest. In fact, the organization, now operating from the old Metropolitan Methodist Church, will continue to make investigations of cases and recommend the amount of employment to the District employment committee staff.

Instead of distributing welfare board cases among the several charitable agencies, as was first announced, the Community Chest is now expected to finance the employment committee, somewhat as it did last winter, to the extent of $100,000.

Indications are now that the District relief will end about the last week in November. As 10 per cent of the fund can be used for administration, however, the welfare board will be able to continue the salaries of Mr. Halbert and his staff until another appropriation is obtained, providing, of course, that Congress does not delay action too long.

The special relief staff, which now numbers close to 40 persons, will be reduced, though, as it is now pretty well caught up in its investigative work.

Yesterday the Commissioners received word from Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding the Third Corps Area, that charitable agencies in Washington would be permitted to buy from a long list of salvaged articles, including considerable clothing, at the price of 1 cent an article. The letter was turned over to the charitable agencies.

Washington Man Hurt In Auto-Truck Crash

Paul Allison, 26, of 1447 Fairmont street northwest, suffered skull fracture and possible internal injuries yesterday afternoon when his car crashed into the rear of a truck driven by Mason Burnley, of Centerville, at Willow Springs, about 4 miles west of Fairfax on the Lee highway. Allison was caught in the wreckage of his car, which telescoped the truck.

Picked up by Allen Crouch, of Centerville, the man was rushed to Fairfax, where he was examined by Dr. R. E. Peagan. He was subsequently brought to Georgetown Hospital.

Pythians to Honor Unknown Soldier.

The Knights of Pythias will place a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at 9:30 o'clock this morning. Supreme Chancellor James Dunn, jr., of Cleveland, will have charge of the ceremonies.

PRUDERY IS TERMED MENACE TO HEALTH OF YOUNG CHILDREN

U. S. Social Hygiene Society Hears of Protection for New-Born Infants.

Prudery on the part of the medical profession is preventing the safeguarding of new-born infants against the most serious of social diseases, Dr. Edward L. Keyes, president of the American Social Hygiene Association, and professor of urology at Cornell University, declared last night at a joint session of the regional conference of the association and the District of Columbia Medical Society.

Dr. Keyes pointed out that the newly born could be protected from the most common of the diseases by injection of silver nitrate in the eyes. The more serious diseases could be eliminated by the giving of blood tests to all prospective mothers, he said. He declared that from 5 to 10 per cent of the white population inherit these diseases.

Dr. Keyes stated that although venereal disease is being fought with a constantly increasing efficiency of organization that there is no assured diminution in the number of those afflicted.

Urges Industrial Interest.

"The practicing physician," Dr. Keyes said, "has not accepted the implications of the fact that venereal diseases are to be classified as infectious and as such are within the domain of public health officials.

"The best of all hopes," Dr. Keyes added, "is found upon the awakening of industry that it is more profitable to control venereal diseases by treating their workmen than to disseminate it by discharging them."

Dr. Keyes' address was a highlight of the regional conference on social hygiene which opened yesterday at the Washington Hotel, following the close of the meeting of the American Public Health Association.

Speaking at an afternoon session, Miss Rhoda Milliken, director of the Women's Bureau of the Washington Police Department, blamed parents for the influence of unsuitable moving pictures on children. More care on the part of parents in choosing movies for their children rather than censorship is necessary, she said.

Transient Boy Problem.

Miss Alice Bowler of the Federal Children's Bureau, addressed the conference on the problem of the transient boy, while Dr. William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, spoke on recreation and character building. Mrs. Elwood Street presided.

Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the Federal Children's Bureau, speaking at a luncheon session, declared that adequate provision for children this winter should entail "not mere lip service," but real sacrifice.

A high light of today's meeting will be the story of how hundreds of couples are receiving aid in matrimonial problems from the Old Stone Church of Cleveland, known as the Little Church Around the Corner of the Middle West. Mrs. Elgin Sherk, a member of the staff of the church in charge of this work, will tell of the success of this work at a luncheon session today at the Willard Hotel.

New Bus Taxation In Effect Tuesday

District to Collect Several Thousands in Additional Revenue This Year.

Several thousands of dollars in additional taxes will be collected by the District government this year from buses operating in the Capital under provisions of the new license act, the Public Utilities Commission made known yesterday in data accumulated for the collector of taxes.

The license act provides that all buses operating in the city, both interstate and intrastate, must pay a tax at the rate of .8 cent a mile. Up to this time local buses paid personal property taxes and a franchise tax, but interstate buses paid no local tax.

The commission estimated that the major bus lines will operate 5,802,944 miles in the District, exclusive of park areas, within a year from November 1, when the new tax becomes collectable. This will net the District $46,423.55. The buses are to be taxed for their trips in the park areas as well, however, and three small bus lines have not yet made reports on the number of miles traveled. In addition, $100 will be collected from each of the 62 sightseeing buses operating in Washington.

Open Air Art Show Held On British Embassy's Site

Underwood & Underwood.

An outdoor art exhibit, one of the first in Washington, opened yesterday on a vacant lot at Connecticut avenue and N street northwest. The display contains the work and hopes of young Washington artists.

Young Artists of Capital Display Wares in Old World Fashion.

The large vacant lot on the site of the old British Embassy at Connecticut avenue and N street yesterday was transformed into an outdoor salon.

Paintings, wood cuts, etchings, sculptures and other objects beautiful fashioned by the hands of younger members of Washington's art colony were arrayed on the site where once stood the somber Victorian British embassy.

Many of the exhibitors have won national fame for their creations. Most of them were on hand to greet prospective patrons and discuss art and the struggles for existence that confront the talented.

The show was arranged by Charles Surendorf, young portrait and landscape painter, who got his inspiration from similar projects staged in New York and Chicago.

Among the exhibitors are Robert Gates, whose wood cuts have won him fame; Hugh Collins, sculptor and painter of local renown; Margaret Casey, who does water colors, and Alexander Sweeny, for whom a prominent New York art patron has arranged an exhibition in the near future at a large New York gallery.

Joseph Goethe, 21-year-old sculptor and collateral descendant of the German poet-philosopher, is another of the exhibitors.

The main objects of the exhibition have both pecuniary and artistic themes. Though a place in the sun is all that artists are reputed to crave, one of the youths remarked last night:

"Some of us had to put on our topcoats before it was really cool enough for them because they covered up holes in our trousers."

The exhibit will continue today, weather permitting.

FIREMAN CHARGES POLICE MISCONDUCT

Complaint Against Detective May Be Heard by Trial Board.

Charging that he was roughly handled and his umbrella broken on October 17 by Precinct Detective C. N. Strange, of the Second Precinct, Ralph A. Smith, colored District fireman, of 1311½ South Carolina avenue southeast, has made formal complaint of the conduct of the policeman to the police officials.

Inspector F. S. W. Burke, chief of the detective bureau, declared last night after discussing the matter with Maj. E. W. Brown, superintendent of police, that the charges would probably be aired before the trial board.

Smith alleges, Burke declared, that Detective Strange attempted to force him into an automobile driven by another and unnamed man near Eleventh and C streets southeast. An accident had occurred a few moments before at a nearby intersection, declared Smith, according to Burke, and the detective had commanded the fireman to assist in clearing away the debris.

When Smith refused, he said Strange, whom he accused of being under the influence of intoxicating liquor, forced him into the machine, breaking the umbrella in so doing. Smith said he then freed himself and telephoned police. When a police car arrived, the other car had departed, it was said.

According to the complaint filed with Inspector Burke, Strange, who is a plain clothes man, was so attired during the purported altercation, while Smith was clothed in District fireman's uniform.

Man Charged as Speeder And Possession of Rum

Five gallons of alleged alcohol were seized by police yesterday who halted a car driven by a man said to be Salvatore Morino, 141 Bates street northwest. The car was stopped on Georgia avenue for speeding.

The driver was charged with speeding, driving without a permit and possessing intoxicating liquors.

JOB AGENCIES DRIVE IS PUSHED BY BRIDE

Case of Mrs. Meta S. Waters Is Postponed by Court Until Next Tuesday.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride is determined to break up the preying of certain employment agencies on the unemployed, he declared yesterday, after the case of Mrs. Meta S. Waters, of the 900 block of Ninth street, was postponed in Police Court until next Tuesday.

Chester H. Gray, assistant corporation counsel, has been investigating numerous complaints since October 1, and he intends to make other arrests momentarily. Yesterday he stated that all complainants should bring him evidence at once, and he promised a vigorous and speedy prosecution of offenders.

Complaints against certain of the employment agencies are that several unemployed persons will be sent to answer a single call for a worker, and occasionally they are dispatched on wholly false promises that jobs await them. In each instance, however, the job seeker is made to register and pay $2 or more for the dubious privilege of applying for a job.

The corporation counsel's office had been conducting its inquiry secretly until the arrest of Mrs. Waters, so that evidence might be procured before perpetrators of the employment racket could escape. Warrants for the arrest of at least another dozen agency operators are understood to be ready for serving within the next few days.

DR. REICHELDERFER TALKS AT PARLEY OF DISTRICT KIWANIANS

Fourteenth Annual Meeting of Capital Clubs Opens at Mayflower.

The fourteenth annual convention of the Capital District Kiwanis International opened last night at the Mayflower Hotel with an address of welcome by Dr. Luther H. Reicheldorfer, president of the District of Columbia Board of Commissioners, and honorary member of the District of Columbia Club. C. Walter Cole, past president of the Towson, Md., Club, responded.

Harry E. Karr, past president of the Baltimore Club, was the principal speaker and outlined the history of the Kiwanis International from the time of its organization in 1918, as purely a trade club for business men until 1922, and from then up to the present as a service organization.

He pointed out that the coming winter would show the greatest need yet for such a body.

The business session closed with a trustees meeting and conference of club presidents and secretaries. This was followed by an informal dance, reception and entertainment in the garden of the hotel.

The formal opening last night was preceded by a noon session yesterday, which was presided over by Edwin F. Hill, president of the Washington Kiwanis Club. Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams was guest of honor. The meeting was held to commemorate Navy Day.

The convention, which is attended by some 400 delegates from Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, will continue through Saturday morning.

Sojourners Will Give Dance Tomorrow Night

The National Sojourners will hold their opening dance of the season tomorrow night at 9:30 o'clock in the Marine Barracks with music by the U. S. Marine Band.

The Sojourners is an organization of commissioned officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and Coast and Geodetic Survey, and the Public Health Service.
